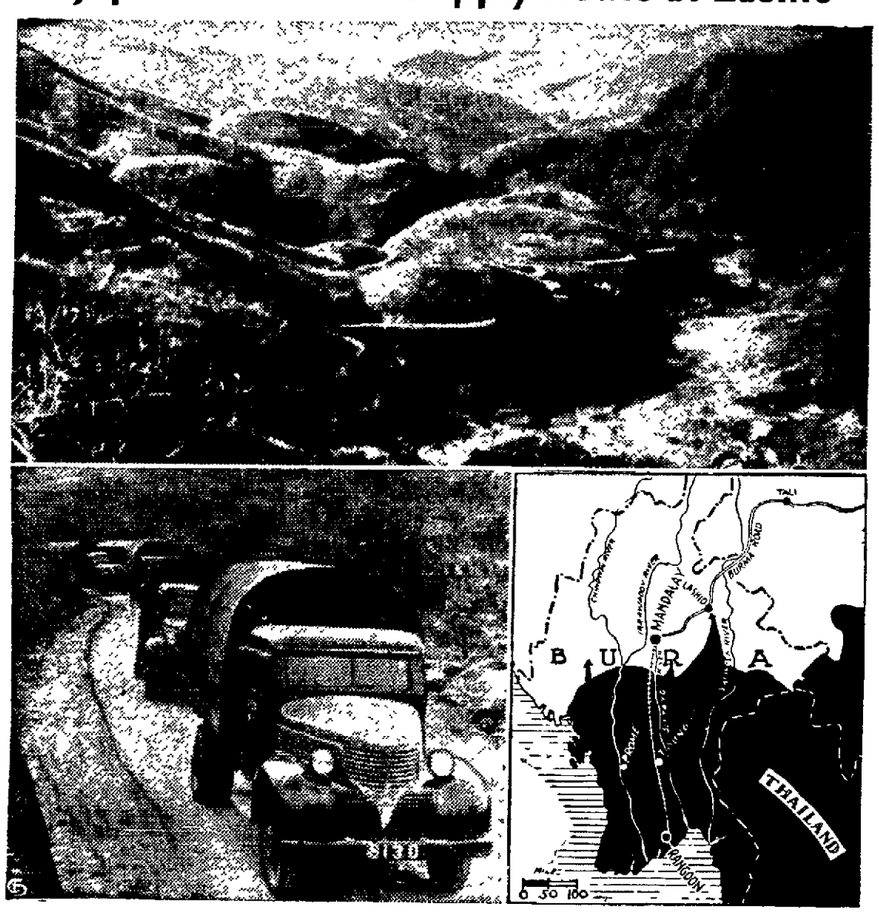
Hitler, Mussolini End Two-Day Meeting

Japs Cut China's Supply Route at Lashio



Thrusting forward more than 150 miles in less than a week, the Japanese have cut China's principal supply line and contact with the outside world over the Burma road at Lashio. Most of the supplies furnished to China by the United States were hauled over this road, shown in the air view at top. Trucks carrying war goods are pictured lower left. The map, lower right, shows the Japanese occupation of most of Burma and the thrust at Lashio which separated British and Chinese troops defending the road.

AXIS LEADERS REPORTED IN 'NEW ACCORD'

Confer at Salzburg, Germany, In First Talks Since Last December.

KUIBYSHEV, Russia—Soviet troops, supported by bombers and masses of tanks and artillery, were reported today to have inflicted heavy losses on the Germans in a battle waged on a flooded battlefield of the central front.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts) — Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini have reached a new accord on all military and political aspects of the war, it was announced today in a communique disclosing the Axis leaders had spent Wednesday and Thursday conferring at Salzburg, Germany.

It was their first meeting since their countries went to war with the United States last December.

Conversations between the two Axis leaders took place in a spirit of close friendship and the indissoluble brotherhood-in-arms of their nations, said the announcement, issued from Salzburg.

"The meeting resulted in a perfect accord of views on the situation created by the overwhelming victories of the tripartite powers and on the further conduct of the war by the two nations in both political and military spheres," the communique added.

(Japan is the third nation in "the tripartite powers" but if she was represented at the conference the communique failed to state that fact.)

Renewed expression, it was said, was given to the stern determination of Germany and Italy to insure final victory by all means in their power.

Both the German and Italian foreign ministers, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano, were present.

Also attending were Field Marshal General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command; General Ugo Cavallelo, chief of the Italian general staff; Dino Alfieri, Italian ambassador to Berlin; and Hansgeorg Viktor von

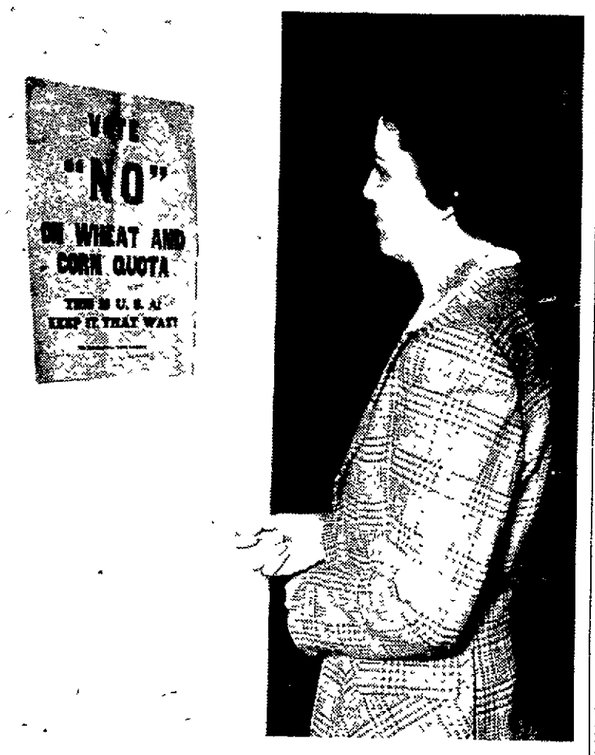
She's 'Neutral' In AAA Fight



Miss Margaret Oswalt examines one of the placards being used by the Richland county opponents of the AAA farm program in their campaign against the wheat and corn marketing quotas. Although Miss Oswalt lives on a Mifflin township farm, she said she's not "taking sides" in the campaign battle. Farmers will vote on the marketing quotas Saturday. The campaign placards were distributed by the Ohio Marketing Quota Protest association which was organized last summer in Mansfield.

Wheat Farmers Vote On Quotas Tomorrow

Expect 500 Richland Growers to Go to Polls After Heated Campaign Over AAA Restrictions.

Richland county wheat farmers will vote Saturday in a nation-wide referendum on government marketing quotas, helping to decide an issue that has stirred more controversy than any other in the recent history of American farming.

Approximately 500 Richland county wheat growers and 40,000 in Ohio are expected to participate in the voting tomorrow which will begin at 8 a. m. Polls will close at 6 p. m.

Only farmers who seeded more than 15 acres of wheat for harvesting this summer are eligible to ballot on the quotas. Non-participants in the AAA program are entitled to vote as well as participants.

Opponents of the marketing quotas which restrict the amount of wheat marketed by farmers have waged a fight against government restrictions since shortly after they were voted in a similar referendum last spring.

Most of the opponents are organized in the Ohio Wheat Marketing Protest association with a Richland county unit headed by H. H. Fackler of Plymouth.

Feeling against the quotas is so strong in northern Richland county that a number of farmers have ordered AAA representatives to stay off their properties, it was reported at AAA headquarters here.

Richland county joined Ohio in voting against the quotas last spring, but the favorable vote was heavy enough in other states to place them in effect. A 67 per cent approval vote is required to continue the marketing restrictions. Less than 50 per cent of Ohio farmers voted for them last May.

Opponents of the program contend that the government's attempt to reduce the grain surplus has failed and there should be no crop restrictions on farmers in wartime.

Advocates of the quota system say its continuation this year is crucial. They point to record amounts of old "surplus" wheat already in storage from past years; prospects for a good crop this year; limited storage space available for new wheat; and the need to store surplus wheat right on

Warships and Transports In Marshall Isles

Thrust Against American Supply Line To Australia Hinted; Forces Within Striking Distance of Hawaii, Samoa British Fall Back In Burma.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Reports of a concentration of Japanese warships and troop transports among the Marshall islands in the south central Pacific gave rise to speculation in informed quarters today that a major thrust against the American supply line to Australia was imminent.

The island of Jaluit, center of the area in which the Japanese apparently are concentrating, is but 1,500 miles north of New Caledonia, where American troops landed recently to join forces with the Free French. An equal distance to the southeast lies American Samoa, and 2,100 miles to the northeast is Hawaii.

Because of this strategic location, experts said, the Japs could be able to move in any of three main directions or they could try a series of feints in an effort to test American strength before striking with full force.

Indications of Japanese strategy were given in dispatches from Australia recently saying that the enemy was gathering ships and men in the mandated islands area.

These reports were linked here with the disappearance of powerful Japanese naval units from the Bay of Bengal, off India, about a week ago.

Informed quarters suggested that those units, having carried out a purely raiding and reconnaissance mission against the British there, had been withdrawn eastward in preparation for an attempt to sever the vital sea route between Australia and this country.

Australia rather than India, as these authorities see the situation, is Japan's primary military problem at this time. Since the rapid increase of American forces in Australia probably would make a frontal assault too costly even for the Japanese to contemplate, their logical move would be to attempt a blockade.

The strategy of the American high command in anticipation of just such a move began unfolding last January. A task force swept into the Marshall and the adjoining Gilbert islands, laid waste numerous base installations, sank 16 ships and wrecked 41 planes at a cost of 11 American scout bombers.

Since then task forces probably have been in almost constant operation somewhere in that vast, island-studded area. One such movement was disclosed when it was announced March 3 that in operations "west of the Gilbert islands" an aircraft carrier had been attacked unsuccessfully by 18 Japanese bombers, 16 of which were shot down.

It was in line with these prepa-

DROPS PLAN TO REGISTER WOMEN

FDR Says There's No Need to Mobilize Feminine War Workers at Present.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— President Roosevelt announced today the abandonment of plans to register women for war work, at least for the present.

Mr. Roosevelt said he agreed with a recommendation forwarded to him by Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt that there is no present need for a nation-wide mobilization of women for war work.

Studies, the president said, showed that there are more women workers now who want jobs than there are jobs available.

He said there were nearly 1,500,000 women registered with state and federal employment services for work. Any woman wanting to go into war work can register at any one of the 1,500 state-federal employment

Army to Call Up Group of 1-B's As Experiment

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The army soon will induct a small "experimental" group of selective service registrants, now deferred in Class 1-B for minor physical defects, it was disclosed today.

Local draft boards will be instructed to tap this reserve of manpower — estimated at 800,000 men with poor eyesight, flat feet, missing fingers and similar minor ailments—shortly after June 1, a selective service spokesman said.

This initial group will be assigned to limited duties according to each man's particular handicap, releasing for combat service able-bodied soldiers now working at office jobs, in quartermaster depots, or assigned to domestic guard duty, officials said.

The proposed calls were termed "experimental" because the army plans to determine whether utilization of such men is practical.

Keich enlisted in the army in 1939, his father, an Ohio architect, said.

Army of 1,250 Launches Bond Campaign Tomorrow

Chairman Optimistic Over Chances to Reach $295,000 Goal Set for Mansfield and Richland County.

An army of volunteer workers, their number swelled to 1,250 because of the size of their task, waited the starting gun today in the war savings bond pledge canvass in Richland county, which gets under way tomorrow morning and will continue through May 9.

On the eve of the campaign to obtain from every income earner a pledge to buy war bonds or stamps with one dollar of every 10 he receives, Paul M. Eliot, Richland county bond chairman, issued an optimistic prediction today on the outcome of the drive.

"After attending a series of township committee meetings this week, and talking with others among the workers, I am convinced that Richland county will meet its quota for May and the increased quotas to be set later for June and July," Eliot said.

The county's quota for May has been set at $295,200, approximately one-third more than the average of bond and stamp sales in the county in recent months. The treasury department has announced that June and July quotas will be increased considerably.

Eliot emphasized that the pledges which every income earner will sign will be held entirely confidential. The pledges will be made out in triplicate. The original copy will go to the Treasury

FIRE SPREADS

Towns Under Martial Law as Flames Sweep Forests.

WEST GREENWICH, R. I.—(INS)—Gov. J. Howard McGrath today declared martial law in the towns of Coventry, West Greenwich and Scituate, as fire, thought by authorities to be the work of saboteurs, raged uncontrolled over 40 square miles of woodlands along the Rhode Island-Connecticut border.

The chief executive took the step after Adjutant General Peter Leo Cannon, of the state guard, reported the fire out of control and urged that "drastic" military action be taken.

The governor left the state house at Providence by automobile for the scene where thousands of fire-fighters were striving to check the roaring flames.

LEWES, Del. — (U.P.) — A small Dutch freighter was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine off the Atlantic coast the night of April 28, and probably six of its 43 crewmen were lost, the navy department announced today.

Thirty-seven survivors were rescued from a lifeboat and two rafts by a naval ship two hours after the attack.

LONDON —(U.P.)— An explosion that destroyed a chemical and fertilizer factory at Tessenderloo, in Belgium, killed 250 persons and injured more than 1,000, the Berlin radio said today.

The explosion occurred at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday, when a full force of workers were at their jobs. Besides destroying the plant, the blast damaged an engineering school and the Tessenderloo telephone exchange. Many houses were demolished.

Cause of the explosion has not been determined.

Congressman Predicts Bombings On Both U. S. Coasts.

ELKINS, W. Va. — (U.P.) — Congressman Jennings Randolph predicts Japanese and German bombings on both coasts of America within 60 days.

Randolph told a district convention of the West Virginia Petroleum association last night that the United States will send five million soldiers to 30 or more battle fronts in this war—two million more troops than were sent overseas during the first World war.

FIELD NAMED

17 Three-Year-Olds to Run in Kentucky Derby.

LOUISVILLE —(U.P.)— The largest and most open field in a half dozen years—17 of the finest three-year-old horses in America—was named officially today to run tomorrow in the 68th Kentucky Derby.

The 17 included 16 expected nominees and one surprise entrant—Elwood Johnston's First Prize.

Not since War Admiral topped a group of 20 starters in 1937 has a derby field been bigger or more puzzling. As the entry box closed at 10:30 a. m. CWT, Alsab, the Greentree entry, and Requested were rated almost equal in the advance betting odds with none of them coming in at less than 3-1.

Woman Accused Of Sending Defamatory Cards To President.

YOUNGSTOWN—(U.P.)—Mrs. L. H. Helwig of Warren was under $1,500 bond pending a hearing today on a charge of violating postal laws by sending anonymous defamatory cards to President and Mrs. Roosevelt and seven members of congress. She pleaded innocent.

The cards to the president called him "blood thirsty" and criticized his policy of aiding Great Britain in the war.

DEFENSE: British Bag Eleven Nazi Bombers Raiding England

BULLETIN

A SOUTHEASTERN ENGLISH TOWN—(U.P.)—A large force of RAF planes roared over the south coast to France today, renewing the British aerial offensive against Nazi Europe after an over-night lull.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Greatly improved and co-ordinated British defenses were credited today with destroying 11 out of a fleet of less than 50 German bombers that raided English targets during the night but ran into sharp-shooting RAF night fighters, including a squadron led by the son of Lord Beaverbrook.

Max Aitken, son of the British supply co-ordinator in Washington, got one enemy Dornier 217 and his "Beau" night fighter squadron accounted for three others of the eight shot down over or near England, while a Hurricane squadron hiding over the Nazis home airdromes in France got three others.

The RAF broke its aerial offensive against German targets in Europe for the first time in eight days. There were no night raids over the continent and no daylight raids this morning or early this afternoon. Weather conditions presumably caused the interruption.

Authoritative sources said the eight planes shot down over Britain were part of a fleet which attacked scattered points along the northeast coast during the night, and that several other enemy planes, badly damaged, probably crashed on the way home.

Sunderland was one town attacked, Berlin reported.

The German planes did but slight damage and casualties were few.

COMMAND: Stalin Tells Reds To Smash Hitler Army In '42

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Joseph Stalin declared in a May day order of the day today that Soviet Russia, receiving more and more military aid from Britain and the United States, must smash Adolf Hitler's troops on a surrender-or-death basis to make 1942 "a year of final defeat of the German Fascist armies."

"We are able to do this and we must do this, whatever happens," the premier-defense commissar told Soviet armed forces, guerrillas, workers and peasants on this international labor holiday, which was observed within Russia at work instead of at play.

He said Russia was fighting simply "a war of liberation, a just war."

Stalin declared "we have no such aims as the capture of other countries or enslaving other peoples," but added that the only way to win the war was to smash the invaders to the last man if they did not surrender.

"We must do this at any cost," he stated.

His message was carried to all Russian billboards, newspapers, radio and a nationwide network of loudspeakers that drowned out the hum of machinery in flag-draped factories.

As he spoke, military reports told of new Soviet successes.

Besides the announced slaughter of 1,300 Germans on the central and Kalinin fronts, extensive guerrilla activities in the Crimea were declared to have cost the Germans and Rumanians 800 dead. Twenty-five Rumanians joined the guerrillas in attacking a food depot, Crimean reports said.

The partisans were reported so well organized they now were publishing a paper, "The Crimean Guerrilla."

Give Draftees Send-Off Tomorrow

An appeal for Richland county residents to turn out in large numbers for tomorrow's send-off for a group of colored selectees leaving for an army induction center was issued today by Earl Saltzgaber, chairman of the Richland Victory Civic Committee, the sponsoring organization.

"Although this is the smallest contingent to leave the city since the send-off custom was originated, the committee feels that just as large a group should turn out as for the large contingents," Saltzgaber said.

"By comparison with some of the contingents, this is quite a small group, but it's the largest contingent of colored boys to leave the city to date," he said.

Plans for the send-off are similar to those in the past. The bus in which the boys will be taken to the induction center will be parked in the middle of Main street in front of the Richland Trust building. A band will be on hand to provide music, and all traffic will be blocked off to permit the crowd to assemble in the street. The event is set for 7:30 a. m.

There will be no further send-offs until the middle of May, when three will be held on successive days for large contingents. These groups will be entertained at a "going-away" party at the Legion home on the evening of May 11.

rations that American troops were placed in New Caledonia and a separate naval command recently was set up at New Zealand under Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley.

No one denies that in any general outbreak of amphibious warfare in that region the Japanese would be able to muster considerable strength.

Most authorities believe they had anticipated and prepared for the heavy losses they suffered in winning Singapore, the Indies, and much of the Philippines. Virtually all the warships they have lost thus far have been of the older types, and much of their main force of aircraft carriers and battleships has seen little if any combat.

Warns of Jap Menace to Allied Outposts

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia — (AP) — General Sir Thomas Blamey, Allied land commander under General Douglas MacArthur, warned today of the Japanese menace to Allied outposts but declared the Allies were building up their forces even as the Japanese reinforce their positions in the islands above Australia.

Speaking in his first press conference since his appointment as commander of the land forces in the southwest Pacific, General Blamey reported signs of increased Japanese activity which he said might indicate the foe is preparing for an attempt to seize Allied outposts or cut the supply line from the United States.

He explained that Darwin, northern Australia, and Port Moresby, New Guinea, were the areas menaced.

British Forced Back In Burma

LONDON—(AP)—British troops guarding the right flank of the Allied line in Burma have been forced to withdraw 80 miles to a triangle marked by Mandalay, Kyaukse and Myingyan by the Japanese penetration to Lashio, a military commentator disclosed today.

Kyaukse is less than 30 miles south of Mandalay; Myingyau is 50 miles west of Kyaukse on the Irrawaddy river.

The main bulk of the British forces in this area, it was stated, is protecting the approaches to Mandalay from the northeast and the overland roads to India.

However, there are also considerable British forces across the Irrawaddy river around Pakokku, the commentator said This is about 20 miles west of the westernmost point of the Mandalay-Myingyan-Kyaukse triangle on the east side of the river.

Determined to Keep Supply Line Open

BULLETIN

NEW DELHI —(AP)— United States planes carried out a night raid on Japanese-occupied Rangoon, in Burma on the night of April 29, it was announced here today. Damage was done to the dock area.

NEW DELHI —(AP)— Come what may in Burma—and the situation looked dark today—Allied military men here are determined to keep open the supply lines to China and to maintain communications vital to a unified war effort.

The fall of Lashio announced yesterday by the Chinese complicated the situation, for establishment of a Japanese air base there would endanger operation on the big American freight planes now carrying war materials into China from India.

Military quarters expressed hope the rugged terrain now lying in the path of the Japanese may delay their progress toward India's northeast frontier until the heavy seasonal rains which are expected to halt large scale operations within a few weeks.

The possibility that all Burma may be lost, however, is clearly recognized and plans are being laid accordingly.

At present the Americans here have taken on the bulk of the work of ferrying supplies to China and the Burma front because they have the big freight planes necessary.

The number of planes on the job is, of course, a military secret. Nevertheless it can be said the scope of the operations has stirred the admiration of India onlookers.

The British, meanwhile, have been working under great difficulties on the road from India to China. Already supplies are beginning to get through by pack animals and light truck—a journey of approximately 400 miles over some of the world's most rugged mountains.

The work of the American transport service is being ably supplemented by the "Flying Tigers" of the American Volunteer corps.

American operations in this zone, however, are not being conducted with an eye to the Burma front alone, urgent as that situation is. They are steadily shaping into a large scale proposition for the launching of an ultimate offensive against Japan.

Lashio Empty City When Japs Arrive

CHUNGKING, China — (U.P.) — Japan won, in flaming Lashio, an empty city because remaining war stores had been removed or destroyed and China's Burma road supply lines had been shifted in advance, a Chinese army spokesman said today.

Promising that the Chinese armies under Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, United States army, would fight for Burma to the last, the spokesman admitted the Japanese threat was great but said the effect of the enemy capture of Lashio would have more moral than physical effect.

It was feared here that the powerful, tank-led Japanese force which pressed northward 150 miles in a week to take Lashio, terminus of the Burma-Kunming road, might now turn westward in an attempt to encircle Mandalay and trap both Chinese and British forces.

Military experts suggested that the Japanese might at the same time renew their drives up the Sittang and Irrawaddy rivers.

In doing so, it was explained, the Japanese might hope to envelop Mandalay from east as well as west and, advancing up the Sittang directly toward it from the Thazi sector, 75 miles to the south, force the Allied troops to retire toward the rugged mountains behind them.

30 Grounded Jap Planes Destroyed

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — (U.P.) — United States bombing planes smashed 30 grounded Japanese planes at Lae, New Guinea, and destroyed ground installations at the nearby Salamau base, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today in his general headquarters communique.

Three enemy Navy-O fighter planes were shot down in a savage dog fight over Salamaua, MacArthur said, against light Allied losses.

American pilots saw their bombs smashing into grounded Japanese planes at Lae and left great fires burning all over the airdrome.

Direct hits were scored again and again on the planes and all were heavily damaged if not blown to pieces.

They brought to 53, including the three fighters shot down over Salamaua, the total of enemy planes destroyed in two days in knockout attacks on Japanese northeastern bases by Allied planes, including United States flying fortresses and Catalinas.

the farm in order not to tie up the nation's rolling stock which is needed to haul war supplies.

Elmer Kruse, state AAA chairman, said today that there were 9,300,000 bushels of carry-over wheat stored on Ohio farms on April 1, and another 2,900,000 bushels in the state's elevators.

"We're expecting a crop of about 38,000,000 bushels in Ohio this year, based on a 21-bushel yield per acre. There may be storage available for about 22,000,000 bushels of this year's crop," Kruse said.

Five voting places have been set up in Richland county by the county AAA committee. They are:

County AAA office on North Diamond street for Madison, Monroe, Washington, Troy and Mifflin townships.

Bellville Town hall for Jefferson, Worthington and Perry townships; Springfield Township house for Springfield and Sandusky townships.

Shelby Town hall for Sharon, Plymouth, Cass and Jackson townships; Shenandoah Grange hall for Bloominggrove, Weller, Butler and Franklin townships.

HITLER, DUCE IN TWO-DAY TALKS

Mackensen, German ambassador to Rome.

Salzburg is in former Austria, almost 100 miles north of the Brenner Pass where Hitler and Mussolini have staged many of their past meetings.

See Hitler Keeping Mussolini In Line

LONDON—(AP)—Informed British sources said today the purpose of the Salzburg conference of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini obviously was to keep the Italian premier in line with the Axis.

"Hitler must keep both ends of the Axis moving in the same direction," one said, "and to do this he must give Mussolini a pep talk."

He added that "Hitler doubtless feels the need to explain his Sunday speech first-hand—for it needs some explaining to the Italian people."

"At the same time," he said, "there is no good reason to hope that Italy can be jacked out of the war now. What can Italians do with the gestapo holding clubs over their heads?"

Others here pointed out that big developments usually had followed meetings of the dictators.

The meeting at Brenner Pass March 13, 1940, was followed by the invasion of Norway within three weeks.

The meeting Oct. 12, 1940, was followed within three weeks by the Italian invasion of Greece.

Another meeting June 7, 1941, was followed in 15 days by the German invasion of Soviet Russia.

Other meetings of Mussolini and Hitler were at Munich June 22, 1940, to discuss the French armistice; at Florence Nov. 2, 1940, to discuss the Italian-Greek war and at Berchtesgaden Jan. 25, 1941.

$20,000 SET AS GOAL FOR USO CAMPAIGN IN COUNTY IN JUNE

Richland county's United Service organization prepared today to launch upon its second annual drive for funds to maintain recreation centers established by the government in army and defense training areas.

A goal of $20,000, more than three times as large as the goal of last year, has been set for the county by the national organization, according to George H. Smith, county chairman, and it is likely that the drive will be held early in June.

Smith said that a meeting of the county organization would be held next week to make plans for the campaign set-up and that more details would be available after a state-wide U. S. O. meeting in Columbus today.

The local organization was represented at the state meeting by Smith, Adjt. Paul Hoffman of the Salvation Army, Mrs. John Pierce, head of campaign solicitations last year, and Jane Williams, who directs publicity for the organization.

Prescott S. Bush, national campaign chairman, was the main speaker on the state program when plans for the Ohio campaign in general were to be made.

Last spring the county U. S. O., substantially went over its goal of $6,000 and later the fund was supplemented by contributions obtained from the observance of U. S. O., week in the five local theaters.

service offices throughout the nation, he pointed out.

The president said the report sent to him by McNutt showed that re-employment training for women was being steadily expanded. It also contained a council recommendation that state regulations and laws governing working conditions for women be maintained and even extended to states where no such laws or regulations are now in effect, particularly as related to hours for women, rest periods and safeguards for health and safety.

The president stressed, however, that the recommendation against registration of women was applicable only for the present, and that it did not bar such action in the future.

Mr. Roosevelt was asked whether he thought the time had come to register young men from 18 to 20 years of age and seek legislation which would permit their military service. He said he had reached no conclusion on this phase of the military manpower program.

Allies Disclose General and Writer Killed on Ground.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia — (AP) — Brig. Gen. Harold H. George of the United States army air corps and Melville Jacoby, Time and Life magazine correspondent, were killed at an advanced airdrome when struck by a fighter plane which got beyond control, as it was taking off, Allied headquarters disclosed today.

Their deaths were announced yesterday when it was stated the accident occurred Monday. Gen. George and Jacoby were about to board another plane when the fighter craft crashed into their party, the official announcement said.

Funeral services for Jacoby were held today at a Melbourne crematorium. A military funeral is planned Saturday for General George.

Department, the second copy to the state war savings bond office, and the third copy will be retained by the individual signing the pledge.

He pointed out that the pledge is not a contract, but is simply a promise by the individual to buy a certain amount of bonds or stamps so long as he is able. The Treasury Department has requested that every individual pledge one-tenth of his income for bond and stamp purchases.

Eliot pointed out, for the particular benefit of persons now buying bonds through a payroll deduction plan offered by their employers, that the pledge will not be interpreted as a promise for a separate transaction. Instead, the pledge should include both the amount now being purchased by the individual and any additional bonds or stamps he expects to be able to buy.

The Junior Association of Commerce, which last Saturday sold more than $1,000 worth of savings stamps at four downtown booths, will sponsor four booths tomorrow and every day throughout the canvass. These will be located at Third and Walnut, Park avenue west and Walnut, Third and Main, and Park avenue west and Main.

The booths will be stocked with pledge cards, savings stamps, and applications for bonds. Organizations which will man the booths in cooperation with the JAC are the American Legion, assisted by Girl Scouts, on Saturday; Blue Star Mothers, on Monday; women's service clubs, Tuesday; American Legion Auxiliary, Wednesday; and the Navy Mothers club, Thursday. Others will assist on the two other days.

Approximately 500 women, headed by Mrs. Louis J. Ott, will make a house-to-house canvass, in Mansfield, starting tomorrow. Two hundred men, directed by John L. Catlett, will contact income-earners through industrial plants and stores. John H. Warden is heading the campaign in Shelby, and George B. Ganyard is directing 18 township committees making the drive in county areas outside of the communities in which a separate drive is being conducted.

Ralph Lutz is directing the Lexington campaign; H. L. Bigbee that in Bellville; Earl Heininger and C. A. Innis in Butler; and H. M. McConnell in Lucas.

Correcting a previous announcement, Eliot said that Ralph C Stanton will head up the construction division of Catlett's committee.

Final organization plans will be made at a number of township committee meetings at 8:30 tonight. They are as follows:

Butler township—Adario town hall, Charles Stewart, chairman; Cass and Shiloh townships, agriculture room of Shiloh high school, W. W. Nesbitt, Cass chairman, and A. W. Firestone, Shiloh chairman; Jefferson township, Honey Creek Community hall, A. T. Leedy, chairman; Madison township, county extension office, Neil Robinson, chairman, Troy township, Lexington school, Ralph Sawyer, chairman.

MISSING ENVOY FOUND RESTING

Polish Minister To Argentina Didn't Expect A Reception.

BUENOS AIRES — (INS) — The "mysterious disappearance" of Morislaw Arciszenski, newly-appointed Polish minister to Argentina, was solved today when it was learned that he stopped off at Mendoza for a rest, rather than coming direct to Buenos Aires from Chile as originally scheduled.

Arciszenski, who organized the Polish armed forces now fighting with the United Nations, overlooked the possibility that a reception would be planned for him, it was said.

BRITISH DOWN 11 NAZI PLANES

Smash at Fleet of Bombers Raiding Targets on English Coast.

Some 4,000 British planes, 1,000 bombers and 3,000 fighters, had taken part in the great RAF offensive; about 100 had been lost, only 40 of them bombers.

In seven nights, Germany had lost 25 out of an estimated total of 190 planes which raided Britain, a casualty percentage which made it unlikely that such raids would be continued indefinitely.

Germany had dropped perhaps 250 tons of bombs on Britain; British planes had dropped upwards of 1,300 tons on Germany, in addition to bombs dropped on occupied territory in heavy day and night raids.

The largest fleet of German planes over Britain numbered 50; British fleets which raided Germany numbered into the hundreds.

RAF Answers Truce Talk With Raids

LONDON — (INS) — German attempts to seek a truce in the mighty aerial combat which has wrought terrific destruction on Reich industrial areas, were answered today by British bomber and fighter planes soaring across the channel to blast Nazi territory for the ninth consecutive day.

A government spokesman simultaneously declared that England's settled bombing policy to destroy Germany's ability to make war would continue despite German feelers for a mutual tacit agreement which would bring a halt to the bombing of cities.

He said that the weight of bombs which will be sent hurtling down upon Germany in the coming weeks will increase and intimated some of the bombs may be destined for Berlin itself.

Britain is not interested in Germany's protests against the destruction of her cities, he said.

Word received from the continent said that the current aerial duel between Britain and Germany, with the Nazis taking by far the worst beating they have yet been given in the war, was proving "highly unpopular" with the German people. The industrial cities of Rostock and Luebeck have been virtually destroyed by the incessant hammering of the RAF and residents forced to flee to safer haven.

Paper Says Alcatraz Prisoners Taken to Leavenworth.

SAN FRANCISCO —(U.P.)—The San Francisco Chronicle said today that 47 criminals at Alcatraz island federal prison in San Francisco Bay had been transferred to the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan.

The prisoners are being transferred, the Chronicle said, because of the asserted difficulty of completely blacking out the prison while adequately guarding against the possibility of an attempted break.

of "German bankers and plutocrats" for the struggle; named Hitler, Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Heinrich Himmler and other rulers of present-day Germany as "the watchdogs of the German bankers."

The premier-defense commissar asserted that Germany had weakened while "our country has become stronger" since the invasion June 22, 1941.

"War has brought to the German people great disappointment, millions of human lives sacrificed, hunger and impoverishment," Stalin said. "Human reserves are running out. Oil is running out. Raw materials are running out."

Recognition by the people of "the inevitability of Germany's defeat," sabotage and guerrilla warfare were said to have weakened the Nazi rear while Hitlerian purges, battle casualties and restriction of reinforcements seriously affected the invading troops.

"The peoples of all freedom-loving countries are looking to the Soviet Union as a force which is capable of saving the world from the Hitlerite plague," Stalin went on.

"Among these freedom-loving countries the first place is occupied by Britain and the United States of America, with whom we are connected by ties of unity and friendship, and who are giving our country more and more military assistance against the Fascist invaders."

The mass demonstrations which have marked the last 24 years of Russian celebration of May day were cancelled.

Nevertheless, every city, town and village arranged for display of red banners, revolutionary slogans—which now emphasize the necessity of "everything for the front" and huge portraits of Lenin, Stalin and other Bolshevist leaders.

CHAPTER XXXVII

"All of Drake's old friends seemed to find it difficult to see him. Not a single one of his old acquaintances ever went to see him at all—not one."

Parris wasn't making it easy for Peyton to go on, though it was clear there was something Peyton wanted to say.

"I hear Drake's going to branch out quite a bit."

"Is that so?"

"Didn't you know it?"

"I'm a doctor. I have no idea what Drake and Mrs. McHugh are planning."

"Well—well—"

All at once Parris was sorry for him.

"What's on your mind, Peyte? You're in trouble."

"Gosh, Parris! How did you know it."

"Anybody could see that. What's the matter?"

"Business. Crescent Hill. I believed it would go after a while. If Thurston St. George had lived—"

"And when you had to deal with the executors, you found you were in over your head? Then sell out."

"I can't let go."

"Why?"

"I've used a lot of money that the St. Georges let me have for improvements. Used it—different ways."

"Peyton!"

"Yes, I did. I'm in a terrible fix."

"How much of this money did you misappropriate?"

"Eighteen thousand."

Parris whistled. "Well, what do you want me to do?"

"Speak to Drake. I ought to be good on the selling end—handle some business on commission. Through my own office, of course."

"Why don't you go to Drake yourself?"

"I—I can't, Parris. It sounds pretty bad, but one time—he came to see me. He asked for a job."

Parris' voice was icy. "What did you say?"

"I had to turn him down. Hated to do it. But Drake was drinking a lot. He—he looked pretty seedy and all that. If he'd straightened out, I needed somebody to—"

"But you didn't give him a chance to 'straighten out,' as you put it?"

"I was just beginning, and I had to keep up appearances."

"And you haven't the ordinary decency to ask Drake for yourself?"

"Peyton, you're not worth the shot it would take to kill you, but—I'll speak to Drake."

"Will you honest?"

"Tomorrow."

"Gee! In a little while I ought to be able to clear enough to take care of that debt to the St. George estate—if I'm not found out in the meantime. But the thing that scares me—"

"What?"

"Just lately Fulmer Green has had something to do with the St. George properties. He's got an eye on the real estate business around here, too. He may know something."

"Heaven pity you if he gets on your trail. I'll see what Drake can do to help you out financially right away."

"This means a lot, Parris." Peyton stood up. "Now I want to tell you something about that attack in the Chronicle."

"All right, go on."

"Fulmer Green was behind it. He had some advance information about the proposal to buy, and he tried to get an option on the place himself. Then he found out you and Drake owned it."

"I see." Parris spoke evenly, but he was turning cold inside. "Go on."

"He really owns a controlling interest in the Chronicle but nobody knows it. He backed Wardlaw so he'd have a paper behind his political career."

"You're sure?"

"Sure. A lawyer in St. Louis named R. R. Rosebro can prove it."

"Thanks Peyton. You ought to be a detective."

After Peyton had gone, Parris called Fulmer Green.

"That you, Fulmer? Parris Mitchell. I want to talk to you right away—no, I won't come over there. No! Tomorrow won't do. Be here at the hospital in half an hour. Don't make it longer."

Peyton walked blindly down the long avenue from the main building of the hospital to its tall gates. He was terribly confused. The confusion was part relief, and part apprehension and unease.

Imagine working for Drake McHugh. Drake, whom he had turned out of his office once, now crippled and married to a little nobody and living in a little house down there in the lower end of town with all kinds of foreigners. His boss! A bitter pill—but there were worse.

Parris had done something no other man in Kings Row would do. He'd live up to it. He'd get straightened out. He thought again of Fulmer Green, and a quick perspiration dampened his face.

Reaching his office, he switched on the light and sat down at his desk, confidence returning with familiar surroundings. His glance fell on a long envelope. It was a special delivery letter, mailed in Kings Row that afternoon. He felt a chill go down his spine as he saw it was from Fulmer Green.

Peyton read the three short paragraphs at a glance, knowing what they said almost without reading them. This finished him. Too late for Parris to help. Or Drake . . .

He scrawled a note. Then he opened the lowest desk drawer and took out a revolver. He arose and walked into the lavatory and closed the door.

Fulmer Green sat opposite Parris. His face was wet with perspiration.

"I don't know where you got all this, unless it was from that stinking Peyton Graves, but if you think you can scare me—"

"You are scared. People like you always are scared whenever they're found out. You were a nasty, cowardly boy in school, afraid to jump on anybody until you had a gang behind you. Society always has a few like you."

Fulmer tried to laugh, but his mouth was dry.

"Fulmer, the Evening Chronicle will publish a full retraction of that accusation of last year. I'll furnish you with the correct data. The retraction won't be editorial. It will be over your signature."

"I won't do it. You're a fool, Parris Mitchell."

"Would you rather Miles Jackson published it in his paper?"

"The Gazette—you mean—"

"Of course. Do you think I'll let you do this to me, and do nothing about it? Incidentally, I had a little talk with the governor last week. He seems an honest sort of man."

Fulmer was red as fire, but he said nothing for a moment.

"All right, but—"

"There aren't any 'buts'. Just write it and have it in my hands tomorrow after breakfast. You'll get it back in time for the paper."

The telephone rang; its faint tinkle contrasted with the tense atmosphere of the room. Parris answered.

"Hello . . . Yes . . . What? . . . When? . . . I see . . . Yes. I'll come on down . . . Oh, a note . . . to me? . . . All right, I'll be along in five minutes."

He replaced the receiver.

"Fulmer!"

"Yeh."

"Peyton Graves shot himself a few minutes ago."

Fulmer's eyes stretched wide.

"Did you have anything to do with this?"

"What do you mean?"

"Peyton was afraid about something."

"I haven't done anything to Peyton Graves."

"I hope you are telling the truth. Come on, you're going with me."

Fulmer looked anxiously at Parris, but Parris' face was set and expressionless. Fulmer followed him rather meekly.

Parris spent much of his free time with Drake and Randy, who were busied with their purchase and development of the Crescent Hill properties. Drake's mind, Parris felt, had completely recovered from old wounds. He was confident, happy, his self-esteem restored.

Even more often he saw the Sandors. He had begun to feel that the comfortable, mellow old house was home again. Often Mr. Sandor spoke of his work.

"I'm a practical horticulturist. Now your scientists—these wizards—I do not do anything like that. First of all, that is not my job."

"What is your job, exactly?"

"To improve the common breed".

Parris considered this, and repeated the phrase slowly. "To—improve—the—common—breed."

"Yes. Exactly. But you understand—like this: to make an improvement on all fronts of advancement at once."

"No. I don't understand you at all."

"Like this. I work with a species of—of bean, let us say. I work to make a few more pods, each pod a little larger, to make fewer leaves maybe, to adopt the plant to a particular climate, to make it a little hardier, maybe a little quicker to flower—many points like that. Just practical improvement of vegetables, that's all."

"To improve the common breed!" Parris said the words again, rather dreamily.

Elise studied his face. "It would be good if somebody would do this for human beings."

"I was thinking just that."

Sometimes Parris plodded about the familiar fields and slopes with Sandor. Sometimes they talked, but more often these excursions were silent. Sandor was intent on his subject. Parris dreamed, or remembered. Out of all of his new association with every familiar corner of the old place something was coming back to him. Piece by piece, little by little, a reconstruction was taking place. He began to gain a perspective he had not had.

In his attitude and in his adjustment to his own increasing world, and even in the external manifestations of his personality, the intentions and purposes of Marie von Eln came gradually to their full fruition.

Once in a while Parris talked about his grandmother to Elise as they walked across the hills, and through the yellow autumn fields.

He watched her as she talked. The half-stately phrases of her careful English had a special charm. It reminded him of his grandmother's speech. There was an odd flavor, almost exotic, about her utterance of the simplest commonplace.

"Dr. Mitchell, I must ask you a question."

"All right."

"The first time you came here, when you came up on the terrace, you asked me if my name was Renee. Why did you think that might be my name?"

"I think I was startled by the way you looked."

"Like someone named Renee?"

"She was a little girl I used to play with."

COFFEE HAS ENLISTED FOR VICTORY!

YOU CAN STILL ENJOY COFFEE — DON'T WASTE IT!

The War Production Board has placed restrictions on the distribution of all coffees. The order reduces the amount of coffee which may be delivered by roasters to 75% of deliveries during the corresponding period of 1941. This action will conserve supplies now on hand for the Army, Navy and civilians and is necessary because of wartime demands on merchant ships that normally transport coffee.

AS America's largest coffee merchant, A&P assures its customers that it will make every effort to see that each of you gets your share of all coffee available under the order. To do this A&P asks you to share with your neighbor by buying only one package of coffee at a time. Thus, you and your neighbors have an equal opportunity to continue to enjoy America's favorite beverage.

Help conserve coffee in your own kitchen. Do not make more than you know you and your family will drink. Be sure that every cup you make is the best possible—better to have one cup of good coffee than two poor ones.

Follow these rules for a cup of good coffee:

1. Buy coffee that is freshly roasted.
2. Buy coffee that is freshly ground and correctly ground for your coffee pot.
3. Be sure your coffee pot is absolutely clean.
4. Carefully measure both coffee and water—one heaping tablespoon of coffee for each cup (½ pint) of water.
5. Serve immediately after brewing.

Follow these simple, practical rules. They'll help you make and enjoy perfect coffee every time. Don't waste coffee—give your full support to our government's conservation order. Enjoy coffee and share that pleasure with your neighbor.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, MAY 1, 1942.

Another effect of high pork prices is that spareribs have become even more so.

There's talk of establishing a 10 o'clock curfew in Philadelphia—which would tend to restrict night life to broad daylight.

May has been proclaimed as Good Humor month in Nazi Germany—and the Nazi idea of what constitutes a laughable situation during a blackout should prove interesting.

Confidence and Caution

THOSE two interviews appearing in this paper yesterday should have imbued Mansfielders with both a spirit of confidence and an awareness of peril.

Coming as they did, from persons familiar with conditions in battle-scarred China and equally battle-scarred Hawaii, they were especially timely.

To the Chinese spokesman, Col. M. Thomas Tchou, the imminent loss of the Burma terminus of the Burma road, later confirmed, did not mean disaster. It brought from him only a reiteration of China's determination to fight on.

To the American, Fred C. Barnett, only now back from Honolulu, came the word of warning—that bombings such as the one at Pearl Harbor CAN happen here.

It seems no more than reasonable that all of us should have confidence—and an awareness of danger at the same time. We should feel that we are going to win—and still leave nothing undone to prevent a repetition of the Pearl Harbor bombing.

Confidence alone will not win—nor defensive preparations. But a will to win, the tools with which to do it, and a proper sense of the danger we face, plus the right defenses to ward off such blows—these will win.

Are We Ready?

IT HAS BEEN said of the American people that they are not complacent about this war—that they stand ready and willing to do more, make more sacrifices than they have yet been called upon for.

The announcement of war bond quotas for May ought to be a fair test of the truth of that statement.

Let's take Mansfield and Richland county for instance. We don't have a very easy time raising $60,000 for a year's operation of the Community Fund. We don't have a very easy time obtaining 12,000 or so members for the Red Cross. It took a week of hard work to enroll 950 members in the Civic Music association, at $5 a membership.

Now, what will we do about war bonds?

We, in this county are expected to spend $295,200 IN MAY ALONE for them?

Will we do it?

Are we Americans all over the country, ready to do that extra work, make that extra sacrifice?

Sale of $295,200 in bonds in one month means $9,840 per day—every day of the month.

Of course, Mansfield has been buying bonds—but not at that rate.

We'll have to spend 35 per cent more on bonds in May than we have been spending.

Are we ready to do it? Are YOU ready to do it?

Less Sugar May Be Blessing

TO MILLIONS of Americans, half a pound of sugar a week may seem privation. But to a vast majority of the world's people it would mean luxury. You may be sure that those who are doing the hardest working and fighting right now get less than that.

Many children, no doubt, will feel a sense of deprivation at first. But they can learn to satisfy their sweet-hunger with fruits and vegetables containing sugar. Carrots, for example, have considerable sugar in them. And there is concealed sugar, or its equivalent, in many kinds of food that do not taste sweet.

It is possible that, on the whole, the restriction will be a good thing for this nation, rather than a calamity. Millions of people, what with their sweet pies and cakes with thick frosting, their double spoonfuls of sugar in coffee and tea, their addiction to candy, ice cream, sweet drinks, and so on, have been sugar-drunkards. A moderate return to more natural foods may make a healthier nation.

Texas Popularizes Pie Suppers

TEXAS, which has a lot of good ideas, offers pie suppers to the world. Shelby county in East Texas is especially given to these parties.

Such events are more than just suppers with pie, and resemblance is seen to the old-time box socials. The excuse is always to raise money for painting the church, or fixing up the school gymnasium, or buying War Bonds.

Every girl brings a pie to be auctioned off. If all goes as intended, the buyer of the blackberry cream eats with the maker of the blackberry cream. Backward indeed is the man who cannot find out beforehand the color of the ribbon tied by the maker he prefers. There is a master of ceremonies who keeps things going.

Reports come of strange and interesting pies, such as syrup pie and pickled peach pie with black walnuts. They tell of one husband who quit his wife three times, and each time came back for just one more piece of her pickled peach pie. But it is not necessary to have these rarities. Wherever there is pie, there can be a pie supper.

Meritorious Appointment

BYRNE HACKETT, a dealer in old and rare books, has been appointed by Governor Edison of New Jersey as a member of the state library commission. His duties will be to spread public libraries throughout the state to those communities not having them now, and to see that the most is made of what libraries now exist, as by the loan of books from larger institutions to the smaller. Hackett is well qualified for such work, having also served as a publisher and a local library trustee.

His appointment is of a type too seldom found on state library boards. Often governors choose former state fire marshals, former members of the legislature, and so on, picked for political usefulness, not because they can do the job. Other governors might well follow Governor Edison's example.

Some young housewives may be surprised to learn that it is possible to prepare a complete meal without using a can opener.

Capital Easy Prey for Epidemic?

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

IN THE heart of America, Washington, they are afraid of a wartime epidemic of some contagious disease or other. The city is filled up so fast with emergency workers and their dependents that a huge percentage of its present inhabitants live under perfectly awful conditions.

The matter of having the money to pay for decent quarters doesn't figure in the situation. Those kind of quarters simply aren't available on any terms whatever.

The suggestion of a tough, energetic epidemic getting started in the midst of such surroundings is enough to scare folk who have to live among them—who have to do so, that is to say, until the contagion gets them and they're carted out to the cemetery.

What makes it particularly interesting, from a national standpoint, is the large proportion of extremely prominent people who hang out here—just now, especially.

The really big bugs mostly lodge in classy hotels and snazzy apartment buildings, which presumably are fairly sanitary. Nevertheless, a first-class outbreak of yellow fever, cholera, typhus or something, having once originated in the slums, can't be guaranteed not to spread around promiscuously.

This is no fancy sketch of the future's possibilities.

Congress is talking about it.

The house of representatives has a District of Columbia committee, under Congressman Jennings Randolph's chairmanship, and it's a committee that has a District health sub-committee, which recently had Dr. George C. Ruhland, the district's chief health officer, before it, to ask him for his prognostication. The doc wasn't any too hopeful.

The district's in no shape to take care of a mean epidemic, either.

Already there isn't a hospital bed unoccupied. Fall ill, and you stay that way in your own domicile. You'll be lucky if you find a doc to prescribe for you. All the medicos, under the out-of-date age of around 75, have been conscripted to doctor sick selectees. It'll be worse as they're sent overseas to tend soldiers and sailors and aviators at the front.

Incidentally, Axis agents are suspected of schemes to scatter germs intentionally. Chungking spokesmen have reported that the Japs are doing it today in China.

Bubonic plague is said to be the disease they're relying on.

They have the germs, according to Chungking's story, and the Russian version is that the Germans have plenty of typhus bugs on hand.

Slums naturally are the nicest kind of localities for the critters to dig in, and slums are what Washington is so prolific of. But how eliminate them?—with construction so completely absorbed by war work?

One thing Washington would profit by would be by means of the District of Columbia's expansion into nearby Virginia and Maryland. Virginia and Maryland don't like being invaded, though.

Suppose you lived just beyond the district, in adjoining Virginia, in a house you'd bought and paid for. Would you enjoy being evicted and told to move into a trailer, to make room for erection of the war department's biggest building in history?

Well, that's illustrative of the jam in and around Washington.

It's a curiosity.

What this town's current population is, is anybody's guess.

It's grown at such a rate that there's no estimate of it.

And the beauty of it is that it never will shrink again. The government NEVER shrivels. If Washington isn't the biggest town in the United States at the war's end I'm no prophet.

Oh, yes, it's a good place to have invested in real estate in, at pre-war prices, provided Uncle Sam doesn't now confiscate it from you, but it's a fierce burg to dwell in at the moment.

Listen World!

Nix On the Ashes

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I GROW a little weary of this national paean of regret, this piling of ashes on our heads and the wringing of hands because we have not been making guns and tanks for the last ten years. Admittedly it is true. Admitted also that it would come in darn handy now, but I deny, with all the Americanism in me, that it's a blot on our record.

I'm no sissy. I'd take a poke at any alien who made faces at me, as quick as any other citizen. I'm as keen on our immediate defense and as aware of its necessity. I'm also aware that aliens who have abused America's hospitality have the shellacking of their lives coming to them and are going to get it. And I hope I'm still around when it starts.

Moreover, I think that any worker who retards our defense program now on any pretext should be given the limit, and how! And I say this regardless, though I was union born and bred.

But I still refuse to think that we are a bunch of lazy half-witted slugs because we have not spent our time, as Germany and Japan have done, in making death machines.

Granted we're lazy, happy-go-lucky, generous to a fault, yet I still believe we were building a better thing these past years than death. We were building fair cities where the rich and the poor alike had a decent deal. We were building hospitals where those without money could be healed. We were building the finest schools on earth and the happiest homes.

We were standing straight, as free men should stand, and laughing deep in our hearts and sharing that laughter with our neighbors. There wasn't a fine cause in this land or any other to which we did not contribute in those years. We may not have smuggled guns but we sent mercy and hope, tenderness and compassion throughout the globe. And every time I think of this I am proud.

We'll have to work a little faster now to delouse the world and take the spare tires off our own waists. We'll have to make sacrifices and know the cruel thrust of fear. We who have known laughter must learn to know tears. And the cynical and the chicken-hearted will cast up in our faces "the lost years."

But they were not lost years. They were years spent in building the nearest thing to the Kingdom of God that man has ever known. They were years blessed by peace and prosperity for us all. And when hard times came every hand in America went down into its back pocket and spent its reserve cash.

AND I FOR ONE AM PROUD OF THAT. I AM PROUDER OF IT THAN I WOULD BE OF TEN TIMES THE AXIS RESERVE OF GUNS AND BAYONETS AND POISON GAS.

Neglectful as we were at times, there wasn't a street in America that touched the filth and misery and despair of the alleys of Tokyo.

THEY MADE GUNS. WE MADE MEN. WE MADE MEN WITH HOPE AND PRIDE IN THEIR HEARTS AND AN OPPORTUNITY AHEAD IF THEY WOULD TAKE IT. AND THAT, I VOW, IS THE MOST GLORIOUS RECORD ANY NATION CAN EVER MAKE, AND IT IS THE ONLY RECORD ON WHICH ANY NATION CAN DEPEND.

For the guns will go. The fighting robots will be killed. The hate will die of its own poison. But the faith and freedom and friendliness which inspired America cannot be touched by bomb or shrapnel. They will go on. They will conquer. They will be here when the war conferences are finished and peace comes to our troubled hearts. For they are the eternal things. They are the things which God breathed into the clay to separate man from brute.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, May 1, 1922.

Safe in pastor's study at First Lutheran church was broken open and robbed.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wolf, 43 Washington avenue; son to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hawk, 52 East Sixth street.

Miss Marjorie Hurxthal resigned as organist of St. Mark's church in Toledo and returned to her home here.

Mrs. D. J. Meese returned after spending winter in Los Angeles.

Paul Collett, 41 Reba avenue, sustained loss of left hand in industrial accident.

"Bill" Seiler was credited with being first Mansfielder to introduce straw hat season (chilly day).

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, May 1, 1937.

National Legion Commander Harry W. Colmery of Topeka, Kans., spoke at mass meeting at Madison theater.

Mrs. Marshall Moore was in Erie, Pa., attending a regional conference of the Y. W. C. A.

Albert Beer was awarded certificate of scholarship at Kent State university for placing seventh in the annual Northeastern Ohio scholarship test.

Miss Caroline Myers celebrated her 17th birthday anniversary with a party.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Jack McKown, 23½ East Second street.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

GOP Leaders Discuss MacArthur, Not Certain About His Politics

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—One subject very much on the tongues of Republican leaders at the national committee meeting in Chicago was Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The hotel lobbies, corridors and cocktail lounges buzzed with discussion of his possibilities as the GOP "strong man" in 1944. Much political significance seemed to be attached to the fact that Pat Hurley, secretary of war in Hoover's cabinet who is now U. S. minister to New Zealand, is in close contact with MacArthur.

However, there was one point on which the GOP chiefs were very much in doubt—MacArthur's party label, whether he is a Republican or Democrat. No one appeared to know definitely in which camp to place him. But one story that went the rounds did give MacArthur a GOP "slant."

According to this report, he sent several friends to the 1920 convention in Chicago, which after a bitter fight finally nominated Warren G. Harding, and instructed them to submit his name to the delegates in the event any interest developed in a World war hero.

MacArthur was then in his early 40's and commandant of West Point. He had made an outstanding record as the front-line commander of the famous Rainbow division and was a very popular figure, particularly among veterans of the AEF.

However, no interest developed at Chicago and his name never got into the headlines.

Note—Gen. MacArthur wasn't the only presidential possibility discussed at the recent national committee meeting. There also was some talk of a 1944 ticket made up of Tom Dewey of New York and isolationist Senator "Curley" Brooks, who had just won the Illinois renomination. Dewey, who has been on both sides of the isolationist issue, is preparing for another try at the New York governorship as the spring-board to the White House two years hence. Brooks is the Chicago Tribune's white hope—provided he is re-elected in November.

Silent White House.

THE White House is dead. It could hardly be deader if it had been bombed. The windows are hung with long funereal blackout curtains, and the liveried butlers stand idle. The great East Room has a new parquet floor, but there is no one to dance on it.

Simply as a matter of ritual, fresh flowers are still brought into the rooms every day, but there are only three regular residents to see them. The crowds that used to make a public museum of the White House are a thing of the past.

Two years ago this month, a high point in tourism was reached, when 8,000 men, women, children and babes-in-arms traipsed through parts of the White House in a single morning. And as recently as Easter 1941, 4,000 children and mothers were admitted to the White House grounds in a single hour.

Then came the ruling that only men in uniform would be admitted to the White House as sightseers, and only on Saturday mornings. Later came Pearl Harbor, and all tourists were barred. Now, the old residence that used to be called the "President's Palace" resounds regularly to the steps of only three tenants—the president, Mrs. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins.

Family Dinners.

IN THE usher's office, just inside the front door, an old-fashioned callboard is hung, to indicate when guests are in or out. There is space for twenty names, but on a recent day it carried only the names of Mrs. Roosevelt, Harry Hopkins, and Lorena Hickok, long-time friend of both the First Lady and Hopkins, who often stays at the White House. (The president's name is never entered on the board.)

A few days ago, the social black-out was lifted to admit the Crown Princess of the Netherlands and her consort, for a dinner party. But no guest list was released, and the affair was kept on the level of a family dinner, in the family dining room.

A year ago it was possible to drive along Pennsylvania avenue, turn in at the White House, hand a calling card to the footman at the front door, and eventually receive and invitation from Mrs. Roosevelt to come for tea.

Today, the gates are closed and heavily guarded. The two avenues flanking the White House are barred to traffic entirely. Never in 100 years has the White House been so heavily guarded. The teas and receptions are cancelled for the duration, and the normally democratic residence of the chief executive stands cold and aloof.

Alaskan Highway.

AFTER all the hullabaloo about the vitally needed military highway to Alaska, it now looks as if it would take at least two years, perhaps nearer three years to build it. One trouble is there is still an argument about the route.

To date the army has picked a route by way of Edmonton, center of the prairie state of Alberta, which is longer than the route advocated by Alaskan territorial officials.

The Alaskan officials propose a short quick route straight up from the state of Washington to Prince George, then on to White Horse. Part of this—about 400 miles to Prince George—already is built. And if interned German, Italian and Japanese prisoners were put to work on the remaining link, it might be finished before winter.

However, both the army and the Canadian government favor the longer route via Edmonton. This would follow the chain of Canadian airports to Alaska. These airports are operated by the Canadian Pacific railroad, which may be one significant reason why the Canadians want a road to link them up.

The army originally picked this route because last summer some of its planes, en route to Alaska with green pilots, got lost and cracked up. So it was suggested that a highway linking the airports would serve as a guide to airmen. The army also favored this route in order to send gasoline and supplies by truck to air bases. The war may be just about over, however, before this interior highway is built.

Note—Under the army's contract, the U. S. A. pays for the road and maintains it until after the war is over. Then it reverts to Canada. However, the army failed to insert a clause requiring Canada to keep up maintenance after the war.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Sometimes in the theater, if the scenic designer is good, it's hard to tell Shakespeare from a dab of paint. . . . You see rows and rows of books, and they all look real—only, they aren't real . . . Not once in a hundred times are they real. . . . They're painted there, or they are false fronts that roll up like a strip of oil cloth.

But on the curb in front of the Hudson theater, where "Jason" is playing, you meet a fellow with a satisfied gleam in his eye. . . . "Aren't we the extravagant ones though? Every book you see on the stage in 'Jason' is a real book. And there are hundreds of them. We bought 'em at auction."

Private Burgess Meredith, late of the stage, screen and radio, in town on a three weeks' furlough. . . . Katharine Cornell votes against a vacation after all, and decides on a revival of "Candida." . . . It'll be for Army and Navy relief. . . . Loretta Young in town and prettier than a picture. . . . She is one woman whose hats always seem to make sense. . . . Hedda Hopper in town and Tommy Dorsey has a party for her, back stage at the Paramount. . . . No "best" play by an American author this season, according to the Drama Critics circle. . . . The critics just can't poll a necessary majority for any one drama. . . . But they have little difficulty naming the best play by a foreign writer—Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit."

Apparently some men, as well as women, can't get over a uniform either. . . . They've been picking up "naval officers" around town of whom the navy never heard. . . . Same for the army. . . . Three picked up yesterday. That's a serious offense, representing yourself as an officer. . . . Though the streets are jammed with men in uniforms of all branches of the service, the hawks on the lookout for forgers and posers have little difficulty in spotting them. . . . A man who doesn't belong in a uniform simply doesn't know how to wear it. . . . It's a sort of mental hazard that proves a dead give-away.

ANGELS on Broadway are guys who put up the money to finance shows, and ghosts are guys who write articles for people who can't write—but in radio a ghost is strictly something out of Edgar Allan Poe. Make good money, too. . . . The three top flight ghosts around town are Santos Ortega, Frank Behrens, and Ray Johnson. . . . Their salaries range from $186 to $378 a week, and this for merely a few moments work a day.

* * *

NICE little record run up by "It Happened on Ice" during its long tenure at the Center. . . . The closing score reads: 650 performances, no two alike. . . . Two legs broken, by Freddie Trenker and Paul Castle. . . . Six marriages among the cast . . . one death . . . one case of paralysis . . . Eight went into the armed services . . . There also were two cases of measles . . . "Ice" played to 1,150,000 cash customers during its 74-week run.

TODAY IN HISTORY

May 1, 1898, marks the date of the battle of Manila bay in which American forces completely overwhelmed the inferior Spanish fleet, silenced the batteries at Cavite and made way for the capture of the city of Manila. It was on this day that Commodore George Dewey of the U. S. Asiatic fleet gave his famous order, "You may fire when you are ready, Gridley."

A Farmer's Diary

Her Home a Poem

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE FARMER'S wife was a bright-eyed, round-faced, gray-haired lady of Scottish descent, and her home was furnished with taste and quaint charm. Big rooms in an old-fashioned farmhouse, may easily be austere. This woman had made hers homey. Old keepsakes were there, but put to adequate use—a stone mortar once used for grinding, served as base for the tongs and shovel beside the tall old fire-place. A square copper lantern that came from Scotland "when grandma was a bride" was hung before a battened door, where it seemed to fit. An old metal "bride's lamp" had been converted into an electric table lamp—even the candle snuffer, a scissorlike tool for trimming wicks of candles, was on the mantel as if it had always belonged there.

We spoke of Johnny Appleseed. "He came often to my grandmother's home," our hostess said. "He had a regular place at one side of their table and would walk in just at meal time. It was understood that when the old man came, the child who sat in that place would rise and give him room. He was very uncouth—bareheaded and barefooted. Sometimes the neighborhood children would laugh at his oddity and tease him. Grandfather would shame them and chase them off.

"He furnished apple trees for grandpa's orchard and for many other orchards in that neighborhood. But the last time he came to dinner, they had no applebutter on the table, and so he never came back again . . . He was a great character. He had so little and yet he gave so much . . . I've often heard my father, who was a quiet Scotchman, say 'If a farmer cannot talk or write or sing, his fields must be his poem! It was so with Johnny Appleseed—and with my father.'

"Thank you," I said, " for that poetic, inspiring thought."

And I could not help but add, in my own mind, that a tastefully furnished, beautifully kept farm home may likewise have poetry and beautiful antique goodness.

TWO DE MOLAYS TO BE GIVEN HIGHEST HONOR

Ceremony to Be Held at Grotto Hall Saturday to Attract Hundreds From Area.

Two members of Baku chapter, Order of DeMolay, will receive the order's highest honor in ceremonies Saturday night in Grotto hall with hundreds of DeMolay and Masonic members from throughout the Mansfield area looking on.

Robert Black, scribe, and Emil Eisen, jr., past master councilor of the Baku chapter, will be presented with the order of chevalier. They will be the first youths to receive the award since the organization of the Baku chapter in April, 1940.

Charles Kafer, chairman of the chapter's advisory board, will act as grand commander at the ceremony and will make the presentation. State Deputy Jesse W. Darling and Harold Daumler, executive state secretary, are expected to attend.

Delegates from Wooster, Marion and other north central Ohio chapters are also expected to attend the program. In addition to the presentation of the order of the chevalier to Black and Eisen, 25 members of the chapter will receive certificates for completing first-aid lessons for civilian defense work.

Howard Schuck, chapter advisor, is in charge of arrangements for the ceremony. Schuck has directed the chapter's activities since its establishment.

Members of the choir of the Order of the Rainbow will present six musical selections during the ceremonies and the Baku chapter orchestra will play for dancing following the program.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Baseball and other sports that interest boys provide the action in two new children's books at the Mansfield Public Library. The story on baseball is primarily for boys under 12 while the other story will appeal to boys in Junior high school.

STEADY, by James and Marion Renick — George Jones wasn't much interested in baseball because he didn't have much muscle and he didn't like to play very hard. He had friends who played baseball though, and one of them showed him how a player had many rest periods and really used his head much of the time. George then began to practice and earned his nickname "Steady." Any young baseball fan will enjoy his experiences learning to play.

VARSITY LETTER, by Franklin M. Reck—This book has stories of all kinds of sports as they were played at State college. The first stories are about the baseball team, but football, basketball, golf, tennis and swimming are also included. The author is already known to the boys who read the American Boy magazine.

COUNTY'S RURAL SCHOOLS WILL GRADUATE 244

Commencement Exercises To Be Held in Last Two Weeks of May.

Richland county's nine rural high schools will graduate 244 boys and girls at commencement exercises during the last two weeks of May, five fewer than were graduated in 1941, County Superintendent Boyd Robinson reported today.

Only two of the nine high schools, Madison and Butler, will have larger classes this spring, but an increase of 17 in the size of the Madison graduating class almost balances the decline in the other seven schools.

In Mansfield, 310 young people will receive their diplomas at commencement exercises June 4 at Senior high school. The class will have 31 more members than last year's group.

The commencement programs in county schools will get under way May 19 when exercises will be held at Butler and Lucas. There will be 26 in the Butler class and 16 graduates at Luacs.

Twenty-four seniors are scheduled to get diplomas May 20 at Lexington and 18 the same night at Shiloh. Madison high and Bellville will have graduation ceremonies the night of May 21. Madison will graduate a class of 68, one of the largest in the school's history, and 36 will get diplomas at Bellville.

Union Rural high school, which will have exercises May 22, will have a comparatively small class, graduating 15 as against 28 last spring.

Springfield high school at Ontario will have its commencement program May 28 and the last of the season in the county schools will be May 29 at Plymouth. There are 17 seniors at Ontario and 24 at Plymouth.

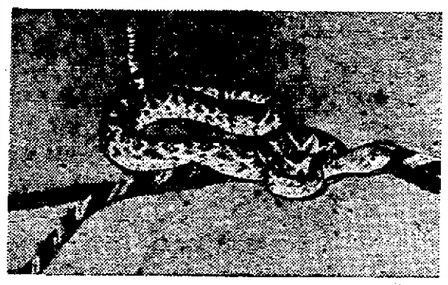
Remember how you used to hear that snakes will drink milk, that hippos sweat blood, that horsehairs put into water would turn to snakes? The Bronx (N. Y.) Zoo says 'tain't so and explodes a few legends, including these:

MICE frighten elephants. Lookit that trunk, poking out there for the apple and paying no mind to the mouse perched on the man's wrist.

EAGLES CAN FLY carrying a lamb or a small child. This one flew with weights attached, but could lift only 4½ pounds.

A SNAKE will follow the movement of a gun barrel. This snake, wasn't a bit interested.



SNAKES won't cross a rope. They won't, eh? This rattler crossed it several times, and then came to rest on it, all rattles going.

TOADS give you warts. It might be too soon to say, but the attendant who held these fellers insists it's never happened to him.

G-M PUT UNDER FEDERAL BAN

Firm Charged With Violating Priorities, Barred From Making Auto Parts.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Charged with violating wartime priority regulations, General Motors corporation today was under a war production board order suspending manufacture of replacement parts for civilian automobiles for a period of three months beginning May 2.

The WPB accused GMC of excessive use of chrome-steel and aluminum, needed in war production, for decorative automobile parts. The corporation has been converted almost entirely to war production, but has been permitted to make certain replacement and repair parts for civilian cars.

The suspension order stated that between Jan. 7 and March 9 of this year, the Ternstedt manufacturing division of General Motors used 10,259 pounds of chrome-steel, in decorative trim for autos.

Between Jan. 24 and March 13, the WPB charged, the company used 9,239 pounds of aluminum and 11,492 pounds of secondary aluminum to produce radiator grills and other body hardware in violation of orders banning use of metals in those products.

The corporation is prohibited under the order from producing during the suspension period any replacement parts for passenger automobiles; light, medium or heavy trucks; truck trailers; passenger carriers, and school bus bodies, for any civilian use.

An investigation of complaints that Ternstedt also was using large quantities of copper, nickel and zinc in violation of regulations, showed that the division's use of these metals "did not violate any then existing order," the WPB said.

COLLECTS DATA ON FIRE TRUCK

Mayor Following Out Request From WPB as City Pushes Priority Claim.

Mayor W. J. Locke today was proceeding to collect data to get the War Production board to release priorities on a new fire hose which the city wants to purchase.

The mayor went to Washington, D. C., last week-end to confer with WPB authorities who had refused to release from manufacturers' stocks a new fire truck, fire hose and two new garbage trucks which the city had ordered.

As requested by the WPB, Mayor Locke said he was getting together reports on the service of the city's fire equipment, most of which is between 12 and 19 years old. The reports will be sent to Washington.

Mayor Locke said that he was collecting data on the service of the city's garbage trucks but that he wasn't so sure that we needed replacement.

"I don't know how we got off on such a tangent about those garbage trucks," said the mayor. "After examining their records, I believe we could get them back into shape for about $600 and get more service out of them."

Many Londoners Still Sleeping In Subway Stations

LONDON—(INS)—In spite of the fact that London has not been visited by the Luftwaffe for nearly twelve months, an average of 4,000 people still spend their nights in the capital's subway stations.

This time last year some 170,000 persons sheltered in the subway stations regularly every night, but today not more than twenty regular shelterers are found at any one point.

Most of those who continue to occupy the shelters have lost their homes, or had the upper floors of their houses damaged. Others are elderly people who do not like the prospect of seeking shelter in the middle of the night.

Refreshments are still served and the arrangements for accommodating the full numbers of sleepers are maintained at all of the shelters.

Baked Fish In All-Oven Meal

By BETSY NEWMAN

TODAY I'm giving you a recipe for baking fillets, steaks or small fish, so you can bake the whole dinner in the oven.

Today's Menu

Baked Fillets, Steaks or Small Fish
Scalloped Potatoes
Broccoli or Cauliflower
Mixed Green Salad with Watercress Dressing
Stewed Fruit Honey Cookies
Tea, Coffee or Milk

Baked Fillets, Steaks or Small Fish

2 lbs. steaks or fillets about ⅝-in. thick, or
3 lbs. small whole, dressed fish
2 tabsp. grated onion
Cooking oil
Salt
1 c. bread crumbs
¼ tsp. pepper,

Heat oven to 500 degrees F. Mix pepper thoroughly into bread crumbs. Cut fish into serving portions and dip them into a salt solution made with 2 tablespoons salt in 1 cup cold water, drain, roll in bread crumbs and pepper mixture and put on greased baking pan. Sprinkle fish with grated onion and cooking oil. Bake near top of oven for 8 to 15 minutes, depending upon thickness and species of fish.

Honey Cookies

2 c. flour
½ tsp. soda
¼ c. sugar
¼ c. lard
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1 egg
½ c. honey
2 tbsp. lemon juice
½ c. chopped nuts
¼ tsp. salt

Sift flour, measure and sift again with soda and salt. Cream lard, sugar and lemon rind together until light and fluffy; add egg and beat thoroughly. Add flour alternately with honey and lemon juice. Add nuts and mix thoroughly, and drop by teaspoons on greased making sheet about 2 inches apart. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 10 to 15 minutes. This amount makes 50 small cookies.

Watercress Dressing

French Dressing, Mayonnaise or Cooked Dressing Watercress. Add 1 cup finely chopped watercress leaves and stems to your favorite salad dressing, and serve over salad. Nice for fruit as well as vegetable salad.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

The years rolled back in memory, even as I had rolled the rug back on the floor of the adjoining room and found, beneath one of the squares of parquetry, the message from the past which I now held in my shaking hand.

Recollections of my girlhood were fairly smothering me. It was as if this carved ivory tube, so familiar to me, had power to evoke past happenings which for years had lain, not forgotten but unreminding, in my subconsciousness.

Again I saw my idolized little mother, now so long gone from me, in the attractive home she had made for me and my brother-cousin, Jack Bickett — in reality only a distant kinsman, but who had come into her loving care when he was doubly orphaned in his early childhood.

Happy Childhood Home.

He had never known the lack of a mother, nor I, told myself with a glow of reminiscent and justifiable pride—of a sister. The three of us had had a happy home together until it was broken up forever by my mother's death.

But it was a number of years before that tragedy when I first saw the carved ivory tube.

Where my mother had obtained it—whether she had bought it or it was something given her in her tragic past, shadowed by my father's mad, desperate affair with another woman, so bitterly but futilely atoned for—I never knew, nor did Jack. But when he was graduated from college she gave him a beautiful watch as a graduation present, and showed him the charm attached to the fob—this same carved ivory tube which I now held in my hands. I was sure of it.

She had pressed a spring and the small cube that sprung open, revealing two thin metal slides which, when slid back, revealed a tiny empty compartment beneath each. For the cube form was only a thin outer shell.

"On these metal slides, Jack," she had said, smiling fondly at him," you can paste little pictures of your sweethearts, changing them as your fancy changes. And in the compartments beneath, if they write in thin rice paper, you can keep some of their affectionate messages. Or you can take a hint from melodrama and keep secret codes in there."

I remembered vividly how Jack had stooped and kissed her.

"I have no sweethearts," he had said. "I want your picture and Margaret's there, and I'll keep the place beneath for secret formulae. I'll have them, some day."

In Love With Madge.

Both my mother and I understood the reference to the cuneiform writing which even then was occupying so much of his time and attention. He never spoke of that angle again, but gave her no rest until he had tiny but good photographs of both herself and me pasted on the slides covering the tiny compartments.

He had worn the watch and charm almost constantly after that. I rarely had seen him without it. I knew intuitively that upon the never-to-be-forgotten day when newly returned from South America after my mother's death, he had sat with me at a reunion dinner in a restaurant, my mother's photograph and mine were still in the little cube.

But I also was sure that mine was removed and destroyed as soon as he was alone after that interview in which, before I had told him of my marriage to Dicky while he was gone, he had told me of his long secret love for me and asked me to be his wife.

Her Photographed Removed.

It had not been rage at me which had made him remove it. There had been no anger, only a great grief and deep understanding, in his actions and in his heart, toward me. Jack was too high-minded to carry the photograph of another man's wife in his watch charm, even if to all their little world she was looked on as his sister.

Almost mechanically I pressed the spring, and the small ivory cube flew open. From one side looked up the old photograph of my mother, and from the other the winsome face of Jack's wife Katherine, the face of the girl who had healed his fancied heartache for me, but whose devotion he had so strangely and cruelly requited in the years of his self-imposed exile in South America.

I did not slide back these covers of the compartments. I had satisfied myself of the one point necessary — this was the watch charm given to Jack Bickett by my mother so long ago, the charm from which he never was parted.

What was it doing in the secret floor compartment of this mountain home of his old professor, Walter Scott Diswell?

A man isn't mighty because he never falls; it's his ability to rise afterward that counts.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

TO HURRY OR GO SLOW?

In certain kinds of hands, and in certain bidding situations, it is usually best to bid as gradually as you can, whereas with others it is best to go as far as you can at once. The former tactics usually apply to hands of generally distributed strength, whereas the latter generally serve best if you have a very long suit or a fine fit with your partner's suit, and very little high-card strength. In one case you want to shut the opponents out of the bidding, as a rule, and in the other, you want to give them every chance to stick their necks out.

There you have three entirely different kinds of bidding produced at three duplicate tables. Notice how at Table No. 1, North crowded the opponents with his jump to 4-Clubs, too high for either of his vulnerable opponents to feel like risking a call, and putting West in a spot where all he dared do was double, and score a set of one by taking two tricks in diamonds and one each in the majors.

At Table No. 2, where West also doubled South's 1-Club, North made a weak interference bid of 2-Clubs, which was not enough to stop East, with his two kings and four cards in each of the other suits to assure a fit. North and South could not now prevent the opponents from reaching 5-Spades, which they made, with the loss of two trump tricks. Of course, a sacrifice by North-South at 6-Clubs would have paid, but they thought they had a chance to beat the contract.

At Table 3, West observed a somewhat different principle to show at once what he had, by bidding the opponents' suit on a hand not quite soundly strong enough to compel a game by his side. After that, North's jump to 5-Clubs was not even enough to shut out East, who bid his hearts in preference to spades, so that his partner could shift to the other major if necesary. That contract also was made, with the loss of only two tricks in spades.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, May 2

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

ACCORDING TO the most powerful or sidereal operations this should be a day of conquest and achievements if new ideas, plans, objectives, with discreet but aggressive action be pursued. There may be a strong proclivity to drastic or over energetic procedure or to meet obligations and duties with resentment or unfriendliness, while an amiable, logical and prudent course would assure the cooperation of large organizations, political or other public agencies whose support is imperative. Be restrained and reasonable even if confronted by peculiar or trying circumstances or temporary frustrations.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of splendid opportunity for hitting high spots of accomplishment and appreciation, especially in new, radical, revolutionary or strange propositions or unusual objectives, even though such efforts be subject to postponements, frustrations, obstacles or surprising and irregular situations. The inclination may be toward battering down such opposition by drastic action or main force, with over aggressive and unreasonable tactics. The tendency to resent or sidestep obligations and normal duties should be restrained for amiable compromise and friendliness, which may attract support of large bodies of political, community, or corporate interest. Attention to health is not amiss.

A child born on this day may be aggressive, energetic and determined to gain conspicuous headway in its novel projects. It may be imbued with revolutionary ideas, much ingenuity and originality, with danger of carrying such to extremes.

News Happenings From Communities In Richland County, Vicinity

COUNTY SHARES IN DIVISION OF TAX REVENUE

Ashland Defense Boards to Get Part of $6,656 Alloted County.

ASHLAND — The Ashland county Defense Council will receive $1,000 of the $6,656.12 civilian defense fund recently received by the county from state funds. The remainder will be divided among county municipalities for civilian defense in their respective districts.

Disposition of the $6,656.12 was determined at a meeting yesterday afternoon by County Auditor F. E. Wicks yesterday afternoon attended by county defense chairmen, county commissioners and members of the county budget commission.

Next week Auditor Wicks will allocate the remaining $5,656.12 to the county municipalities with one-half of the fund to be allocated on the basis of the population of the community and one-half on the valuation of property of the community.

This, it was decided yesterday afternoon, was the fairest means of distribution or it will provide funds for protection of areas most thickly populated and at the same time provide for protection of property of higher valuation which might be located in a sparsely located area.

Townships of the county are for civilian defense purposes included in the respective municipalities of the township. In most of the municipalities the mayor is the civilian defense chairman. In Ashland Earl E. Leed is the civilian defense chairman and in Loudonville Harold Young is civilian defense chairman. S. F. Jameson, Ashland high school principal, is the county defense chairman.

Thus far this county has had only very small expenditures for civilian defense. County commissioners had hoped that part of the fund might be used in the county rationing program in which they must draw on the county general fund for rationing clerks, office rent and supplies but this is not permissible.

Commissioners OK County Road Improvements

ASHLAND — Ashland county commissioners Thursday authorized the improvement of three county roads.

They include the double sealing of county road No. 71, Sections A and B in Mifflin and Vermilion townships with T-31, for a distance of 3.36 miles, at an estimated cost of $3,078 06; the resurfacing with T-31 of county road No. 125, Sections A, B, and C in Green and Vermilion townships, for a distance of 7 41 miles, at an estimated cost of $3,028.66, and the double sealing with T-31 of county road No. 153, Section B in Montgomery township for a distance of 1.06 miles at an estimated cost of $814.96.

Commissioners also authorized the county engineer to make a survey on the proposed vacating of the so-called "Estel Road" in Clearcreek township and set the date of May 7 as the final hearing date on the proposed vacating.

STAGE BALL

BUCYRUS — The annual May ball, outstanding social event of the year for Bucyrus Elks, will be held at the Elks' home Wednesday night, May 13.

House guests and officers of the 73rd Engineers battalion now stationed at the fairground and service men home on furlough have been invited to attend.

PLAN WAR BOND DRIVE

ASHLAND — Attorney Harold E Andrews, Jr., and Stanley G. Hiner, chairmen of Ashland county's committee for the sale of War Bonds, are setting up a county organization and plan to get the drive under way next week. The county's quota for May has been fixed by the U. S. Treasury at $102,600.

GALION CHOIRS STAGE CONCERT

High School Groups Will Present Program Tuesday.

GALION—In observance of National Music week the annual spring concert of Galion schools will be given Tuesday in Senior high school auditorium.

The a cappella choir and the ninth grade choir, under the supervision of Miss Jeanette Slocum, will present the program.

The program, stressing patriotic music, will be divided into two parts; the first will be given by the ninth grade choir, and the second part by the high school a cappella choir. There will be no admission charge.

Director of the Fifth Region of the Office of Civilian Defense, Dan T. Moore, invited the Galion civilian defense organization Thursday to join in a nation-wide observance during the month of May of "The Town Meeting for War."

Moore noted that civilian defense becomes one year old this month, and it is time that people take notice of what has been accomplished.

HIT BY FIRE

Estimate Damage at $1,000 in Blaze at Bucyrus.

BUCYRUS—Damage estimated at $1,000 was caused by fire Wednesday night when a tool shed and equipment stored in the building was destroyed at the Bucyrus country club.

The fire is believed to have started from a spark from a backfiring tractor which was backed into the shed shortly before the fire was discovered.

Destroyed with the building were a tractor, a greenmower, a mower attachment and several hand mowers and several hundred feet of hose and several drums of oil. A gasoline storage tank south of the structure was not damaged, due to the efforts of the Bucyrus fire department.

The loss was covered by insurance.

RITES SATURDAY

PLAN RITES FOR SHELBY YOUTH

Body of Boy, 16, Killed in Maryland to Be Removed to Shelby for Burial.

SHELBY — The body of Nelson Jones, 16, of Shelby, who was killed when a load of cast iron pipe in a railroad car in which he was riding toppled on him at Brunswick, Md., yesterday, will be brought back to Shelby for burial.

Jones, who quit school last year, was killed in the same accident that killed Morris L. Berst, 19, of Indianapolis, Ind Both youths were apparently asleep in the car when the accident occurred in the Baltimore & Ohio railroad yards, authorities said.

Young Nelson left Tuesday with Bunny Johnson, another Shelby youth, for Baltimore, where they were going to visit two of Johnson's brothers, John and George Johnson, while looking for work, the boys mother told Shelby police.

It is believed that the boys were on their way to Baltimore when the accident occurred. The Indianapolis youth joined the other two later in the trip. Word of the whereabouts of Bunny Johnson has not yet been learned.

Born at Moorehead, Ky., on June 29, 1925, Jones had lived here the past six years.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs Andy Jones; six sisters, Lena, Irene, Norlean, Sadie, Alberta and Elsie Mae; also his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Jones of Shelby, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Conn of near Portsmouth.

The body will be brought to the Sutter funeral home pending funeral arrangements.

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT M'KENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

The meeting between Messrs Hitler and Mussolini lacks the power of previous conferences to cause uneasiness among the Allied peoples.

Time was when the world trembled as the all highest of Nazidom thundered from Olympus, but we have come to know that he really isn't invincible and that his partner in crime already is a broken man. Possibly unwilling recognition of this fact by the Axis twins accounts for the lack of circus showmanship and bombast which has surrounded other meetings.

Actually there could have been little call for this parley from the military standpoint, for the fuehrer completely dominates the weakened Italy. The meeting apparently was calculated to sound a note of confidence and solidarity at a moment when the Italian people are in the slough of despond and the outside world is well aware of their unhappy state.

It is a matter of deepest interest that this war council while referring to "the overwhelming victories of the tripartite powers" (Germany, Italy and Japan), appears to have been devoted to "the further conduct of the war by the two nations" (Germany and Italy).

This is to say, we are left to draw the conclusion that perhaps Hitler is being forced to abandon his idea of fully coordinating the efforts of the European Axis and the Japs. There can be small doubt that Nippon is bent on feathering its own nest and that it has no intention of playing Hitler's game excepting as it is of benefit to Japan.

The conferees announced the "stern determination of Germany and Italy to insure final victory by all means in their power." That means Germany's stern determination, of course, and it should be said at once that it isn't a thing to be brushed lightly aside by the Allies.. The great Hitlerian war machine is terribly dangerous.

A fair answer to this declaration comes from Premier Stalin of Russia in his May day order of the day to his nation. The Red leader declares that the Soviet, with aid from America and Britain, must and can make 1942 "a year of final defeat of the German Fascist armies."

That is mighty encouraging talk, but the thing which strikes me most forcibly in Stalin's statement is that Russia has become stronger since the invasion of 1941.

Stalin says that while the Soviet has become stronger, Germany has weakened. Of Nazidom's position the Red leader said:

"Human reserves are running out. Oil is running out. Raw materials are running out."

That is the story as professional observers know it, too. Hitler's resources are running low, and Italy is in bad shape.

Still, I think we must see the Russian and German fighting machines in action this summer before reaching any final conclusion as to their relative strength. We are facing probably the greatest and bloodiest battle of all time, and it would be a terrible mistake to underestimate the strength and military skill which Hitler presumably can throw into that conflict. It will take all the Allies can muster to beat him.

SENATE CUTS NON-DEFENSE APPROPRIATION

Lops Independent Offices Bill By $12,000,000 In Economy Move.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Fresh from a preliminary victory, senate economy advocates sought a new "drop-in-the-bucket" cut today in the independent offices appropriation bill—the year's biggest supply bill for primarily non-defense agencies.

Despite some protests, the senate yesterday supported its appropriations committee in cutting $12,314,513 from the funds of various governmental departments for the fiscal year starting July 1, the principal slash being a travel expense allowances for a dozen agencies.

Even though the reductions were partly offset by certain committee-recommended increases, the chamber demonstrated a willingness to cut non-defense spending, once on a 53 to 20 record vote. During the debate Senator Tydings (D-MD) demanded that the senate "save money now, or you are going to rue the day before this international situation is over."

Acknowledging that one of the proposed reductions might by itself be but a "drop in the bucket," Tydings added that victory would come to the nation which in the end had "the most drops left in the bucket."

Tydings announced that he would ask the senate to eliminate from the bill authority usually given to most federal agencies for purchase of newspapers, periodicals and similar supplies, an item he estimated cost $40,000 a year.

The library of congress, he declared, had available all newspapers and periodicals which might be needed.

As the bill passed the house it contained appropriations totalling $2,096,048,875, compared with $3,354,038,224 for the current year and budget estimates of $2,109,887,431 for the approaching fiscal year.

As it came from committee, the total was $2,125,985,890, which appeared as an increase over the house figure and over the budget estimates despite committee reductions.

Here's a consoling item for parents of boys in the Mansfield Senior high school graduating class. Parents here are spared an item of expense that exists in a number of other cities—an item that this week is causing widespread discussion in Columbus The item is white flannels. One senior at Columbus obtained petitions from half his classmates, requesting that wearing of white flannels at the graduation ceremony be dispensed with this year, and that ordinary suits be worn, in order to save expense. School officials will decide the issue at a meeting soon. In Mansfield, graduates wear caps and gowns, and the boys can wear their regular suits underneath.

Officials and employes at the courthouse today disproved the belief that state examiners are unpopular visitors at public buildings. Returning to Mansfield after several months absence, Examiner Tom Withers of Ashland was greeted by the entire county staff as if he might have been a long-absent member of their group. Withers was at the courthouse about seven months more than a year ago, checking county records. He will examine the county's rural school accounts this time. With him today was a new-comer, Examiner Samuel Houston who will begin a periodic inspection of county records.

HENDERSON TO HIRE 20,000 NEW WORKERS

Local Groups Being Turned Into Permanent Units To Handle Big Job.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Price Administrator Leon Henderson today made plans to hire at least 20,000 to 30,000 workers as the first step in what he described as the "tremendous task" of setting up 10,000 permanent "war price and rationing boards" throughout the country.

While Henderson and officials in his office refused to reveal how big a staff would be recruited, it was learned in other government circles that it will at least number between 20,000 and 30,000. It was pointed out that the selective service organization, with only 6,500 boards, has about 15,000 clerks on a $1,500,000-a-month payroll.

Henderson, it was reported, is quietly reorganizing local rationing boards to make them permanent. With these boards scheduled to handle retail prices, sugar, gas and automobile rationing, they will have paid staffs and clerks, all to be hired through civil service. The pay, in most cases, probably will be limited to $1,800 a year, and average over-all about $100 a month.

It was estimated that every local board will need at least two or three clerks to start with, as that was the experience of the draft boards. In addition, Henderson plans to employ professional price checkers. The number was not disclosed but the price boss, it was learned, will "borrow" inspectors from the wages and hours division, the bureau of labor statistics and other government agencies.

The local boards will be confronted with "mountains" of paper work. After May 18, when the general price ceiling on all retail prices becomes effective, every one of the 1,900,000 wholesalers and retailers in the nation will be registered. The boards by that time will have the record of the sugar and gasoline registrations.

As shortages of civilian products become more acute, there will be more, more and more registration, rationing and coupon books and cards.

Retailers meanwhile must reprice merchandise before May 18, below the highest level prevailing in March. They also must file with the OPA a list of March prices.

BROADWAY

You Can't Print That!

(A Compendium of Tales That Can't Be Told With Names, Because They're Too True to Print. If You Find in Them Any Resemblance to Actual Persons—Living or Dead—You've Probably Guessed Right!)

* * *

The nicest—and at the same time the funniest—thing about Lucille is that (as the saying goes) "money hasn't changed her." You know all about her. She started out with good looks and little else, and over night she became a Cinderella with a swimming pool and all the other more shimmering conveniences. She's one of the glittering examples that make young beauties stubborn when sensible folks haul out the old one about there being a broken heart for every light on Broadway.

Kilgallen

More than a decade ago, Lucille—who had known extreme poverty—became the belle of the big town. She posed for celebrated artists of the day and was a showgirl in the days when showgirls were more glamorous and sought after than any girls have ever been since.

Those were the days of the prosperous stage door John, and Lucille—like many of her ambitious colleagues—was not above a little harmless gold-digging. A little perfume here, a big box of candy, sheer stockings, maybe a fur piece—not really gold, but very glamorous to the girl who started on the very lowest rung of the luxury ladder.

Well, while she was at the peak of her beauty, Lucille met the man she still insists was her true ideal. He was kind; he was considerate; he adored her—and he was a multi-millionaire. They married and were completely contented.

Some years later, he died—leaving Lucille sad, but fabulously wealthy. The fortune she inherited was so staggering it would make an ordinary millionaire's head swim just to think of it. No fur was too costly for Lucille to buy without a second thought. Her jewel collection was enough to make a Maharajah emerald green with envy. She owned several impressive estates; she gave lavishly to charity.

After a few years of widowhood, the still lovely Lucille married a famous star. Noted for his generosity toward the loves of his pre-marital days, the star threw up his hands in hopelessness some years after his marriage and stopped giving his wife gifts, even on anniversaries and holidays. He felt anything he bought her would make him look like a cheap skate, because she could buy herself so much more.

That was the wrong attitude, though. He discovered how wrong it was when Lucille divorced him last year.

Well, Lucille has found a new beau, and she's having the time of her life. This new beau, you see, takes her shopping and buys her baubles and perfumes and new Spring hats. He takes her to the Stork club and the generous Mr. Billingsley sends her more perfume and pretty little purses, and no chorus girl or Powers model was ever so thrilled by these little attentions.

Her new beau has money but Lucille's fortune is so great that his wealth wouldn't be enough to pay her income tax.

Still, Lucille has presents, and she can tell her girl friends about them. They make her feel gay and beautiful. They make her feel again the youthful thrill—of innocent gold-digging.

But you can't print that. People might think Lucille was miserly or grabby. But she's not. It's just that every time an admirer dangles pretties before her big, blue eyes—she feels like a girl again!

DEATH CLAIMS FRED E. RILAND

Vice President of Ritter Company Dies Following Brief Illness.

Fred E. Riland, 53, familiar to hundreds of Mansfielders in his capacity as vice president of the Charles Ritter company, dealers in stationery and office supplies, died early today at General hospital following a brief illness. He lived at 221 Penn avenue and was the father of two sons in the U. S. army.

Mr. Riland was associated with the Ritter company for 35 years and in that period was known to the many Mansfield residents doing business at the store.

He was born in Perrysville Aug. 7, 1888, the son of Wilson and Jennie Mapes Riland, but the family moved to Mansfield when he was but a small boy. Mr. Riland was a member of the First Christian church.

Survivors are his widow, Ethel; two sons, Alfred E., of Camp Forrest, Tenn., and Robert D. Riland of Fort Knox, Ky; two sisters, Mrs. Lyman Daugherty and Miss Ida Riland of Barberton; and a brother, Mont D. Riland of Texas.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held Monday at 3 p. m. with Rev. B. F Hagelbarger, pastor of the First Christian church, officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery

TALKS ON MEATS

O. S. U. Expert Gives Cutting Demonstration Before 300.

Richland county members of the seven nutrition classes now being sponsored by Richland county Council of Nutrition for Defense learned how to judge meats of various kinds at a demonstration Thursday afternoon in John Simpson auditorium.

More than 300 women saw Dr. Lawrence E. Kunkle, professor of animal husbandry at Ohio State university, illustrate his lecture by cutting up half a beef to explain the quality of the different cuts.

Mrs. W. B. Ford, president of the county council, introduced the speaker and announced two future meetings that would also bring the classes together. Later this month the classes will hear Mrs. Julia Kiene, Westinghouse home economist, speak on vitamized cooking The June meeting will be conducted by a Chicago speaker.

DEALERS STUDY WAR PROBLEMS

Standard Oil Representatives From Area In Session Here.

Ninety Standard Oil dealers from throughout the Mansfield division last night attended a meeting in the Mansfield-Leland hotel, called by company officials to discuss problems in station operation and gasoline merchandising created by the war.

Arthur F. Busch, merchandising manager of the Mansfield division, conducted the meeting, and a talk also was given by R. D. MacIntosh, operations manager for the division.

A sound motion picture entitled "The Dealer's Dilemma," was shown. A buffet luncheon was served after the meeting. Dealers were present from Mansfield, Galion, Ashland, Wooster, Shelby, Mt. Vernon and other cities and towns in this area.

OFFICIALS STUDY WELFARE OF OHIO 'TEEN-AGE WAR ORPHANS

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Early 'teen age war orphans, their mothers busy in vital industries and their fathers drilling as $21-a-month buck privates in the army, are becoming a principal concern of state welfare officials.

With more fathers being called into military service and more mothers being urged to take over war jobs, state welfare department officials fear that war waifs may become the gunmen of tomorrow's underworld if allowed to grow up without parental guidance.

As a part of a broad program the department is molding in anticipation of sociological changes of the war, the Ohio children's code commission meets today to suggest revisions in state laws governing the care of children. The commission plans to formulate modern legislation based on social changes in the last decade.

State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood said that the instance of the dependent child, made "practically homeless by loss of his father to the army and his mother to industry," had not yet become widespread.

Drafting of men with dependents is scheduled to begin this summer and welfare officials believe that provisions must be made for financial aid to and supervision of dependent and neglected children as well as mentally-retarded youngsters, those with defective speech and "problem children."

The state welfare department estimated that more than 56,000 Ohio children already are in those classifications.

Although welfare officials are seeking legislation covering all needy children, they are particularly interested in those just entering their 'teens.

NAMED TO POST

City Sanitary Engineer Gets District Position.

Douglas P. Griffin, 133 Dawson avenue, city-county sanitary engineer, was named today as district sanitary engineer to supervise public sanitation in Richland and five surrounding counties.

Griffin, who has been city-county sanitary engineer for the past six years, will take up his new post immediately, maintaining his headquarters in Mansfield.

Dr. William B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, said that he was seeking not only a sanitarian to fill Griffin's position but that he believed another sanitarian would be added by the Richland county board of health. At present there are three sanitarians working along with Griffin.

Griffin came to Mansfield from Norwalk where he was employed at the sanitary treatment plant there for three years and for another three years with a private firm. He is a graduate civil engineer from Ohio State university.

The new district sanitary engineer said that he had not been informed as yet as to which counties he would supervise but that he believed they would include Richland, Huron, Ashland, Crawford, Morrow and Holmes counties.

BECOMES CLERK

Mrs. Emma Pierce Named to Draft Board 3 Post.

Mrs. Emma Pierce, 111 West Fifth street, today became Richland county's first woman draft board clerk in the second World war.

She was appointed by Board 3 to succeed Charles Kirkwood of Shenandoah who resigned after serving as clerk since the board was organized in the fall of 1940. The board has headquarters in the courthouse.

Mrs. Pierce has been chief assistant clerk of Board 3 since Nov. 5, 1940, and has had an important part in handling plans for the induction of men from Shelby and the rural sections of the county.

MANHATTANITES USE THE STAIRS

Strike Halts Elevators on West Side of Borough.

NEW YORK — (INS) — About 100,000 tenants, including residents of many of New York's most luxurous apartment houses, today were forced to walk up and down stairs as elevator operators and maintenance men went on strike in one section of Manhattan.

The area affected included the West Side of Manhattan between Central Park West and the Hudson river and between 59th and 110th streets.

The walkout was ordered by Local 32B of the AFL Building Service Employes International union following collapse of city-wide negotiations for a pay increase and a union shop.

STARK CONFERS

U. S. Admiral Begins Series Of Talks In London.

LONDON—(INS)—Admiral Harold R. Stark, commander of United States naval forces in European waters, launched into a series of conferences with high British naval officials at an early hour today, following his arrival in London yesterday.

"I want to get down to my job as soon as I can," the admiral declared on his arrival, and despite the lateness of the hour, he received several visitors in his hotel room last night for conferences on matters of business.

Labor Problem on Richland's Farms Getting Serious

With the farmers facing a serious labor problem, scores of jobs are available on Richland county farms, particularly in dairies, at pay ranging from $35 to $50 a month plus board and room, according to C. W. Handley, manager of the Employment center in Mansfield.

The employment office here already has placed 13 men in farm jobs since a campaign for workers began in April and a record number of farmers are looking for help, Handley said.

He urged high school boys who want summer jobs to register at the employment headquarters on North Diamond street so they can be placed on farms when school is out.

"Working in the open and getting $10 or $12 a week besides board and room is better than earning a small salary in town and paying living expenses out of it," Handley said.

FAVORS WARNER

Bricker Would Name Legion Head To Succeed Adj. Gen. Bird.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.)— Adjutant General Whittier S. Bird left, today to rejoin the 37th Division as a major and Governor Bricker indicated that he was considering Milo J. Warner of Toledo, former American Legion national commander, to succeed Bird.

Warner last year headed a Legion commission to London to investigate civilian defense.

This country is engaged in the business of winning a war. It is a serious business, affecting the lives and works and plans of all of us.

Day by day, wartime conditions raise new problems in the making and selling and using of goods. Day by day, advertising is called upon to help meet these emergency problems. And by its very nature, the newspaper is better equipped to serve advertisers and consumers today than any other medium.

The speed and flexibility of newspapers, more valuable today than ever before, enable an advertiser to meet the swiftly changing market conditions of this emergency, when and where these changes occur. In newspapers, an advertiser can deliver the right message in the right markets at the right time. In no other medium can an advertiser fit his message to current emergencies so quickly and effectively.

The coverage of newspapers, more complete today than ever before, includes all the people an advertiser wants to reach. Executives, retailers, consumers... everybody who should be kept posted on a company's wartime operations...can be reached through this single medium. (The latest official ABC reports show newspaper circulations at an all-time high.)

Reader interest in newspapers, more intensive today than ever before, assures an advertiser of even closer attention to well-executed newspaper ads than in the past. The Continuing Study of Newspaper Reading shows that war news in the headlines means more careful reading of the ads; that the more important the news, the more thoroughly people read the whole paper, including the ads. Today, more than ever before, people realize that the ads are news, too...timely news that gives them valuable advice, saves them time, energy and money.

The efficiency of newspapers, more important today than ever before, gives an advertiser a more economical, waste-free delivery of his message than any other medium can offer. Advertising economy is all-important these days, and can best be effected through the marksmanship of newspaper advertising.

* * *

These and other advantages, each one accentuated by wartime business conditions, make newspaper space the one medium which is completely geared to today's needs. That's why the makers and sellers and buyers of goods are finding newspaper advertising so serviceable and so valuable today.

TWO ROOSEVELT FAMILIES FORM BOOK'S THEME

Literary Critic Tells Story of Relationship Which Gave U. S. 2 Presidents.

The story of two main branches of the Roosevelt family tree which each produced a president is set down by a member of the New York Times staff in his new book, "The Amazing Roosevelt Family," now in circulation at the Mansfield Public library.

Karl Schriftgiesser, the author, is a widely-known literary critic whose articles for magazines of the calibre of "The North American Review" and "The New Republic" have added to his reputation as a writer.

In his story which traces the Roosevelt family from the shadowy immigrant who brought the name to America in 1613 to the present day the writer vividly brings to life the members of this family that has played such astonishing roles in American life.

FAMILY ALBUM by Agnes Rothery is a true and amusing record of an actual family of boys and girls who were blessed with a dynamic and witty mother and a picturesque and impulsive father. Hundreds of graduates from Wellesley, Dana Hall, Harvard and Tech were familiar with the big Rothery House in Wellesley, which was the scene of such hilarity and hospitality.

OUR NEW MUSIC by Aaron Copland is a survey of contemporary music trends and personalities, both European and American, beginning with Glink and ending with Stravinsky, and placing each composer considered as to his share in the development of modern music. Contains also a short discussion of music for the radio, phonograph and the film, and a list of available recordings of the composers included.

THE WOOKEY by Frederick H. Brennan is a play based on the reactions of the inhabitants of London's Limehouse district in the present war. Mr. Wookey, a domineering tugboat captain, having offered his advice to the government and had it turned down, was rather bitter on the subject of the war until Dunkirk. There he displayed such bravery that the government he'd turned against sent him a gold medal. And when the war came to his own section of London, the Wookey became a fire warden and a staunch fighter for the land of hope and glory.

Other non-fiction: MEASURING TOOLS—JOB OPERATIONS by Barritt; HOW TO BECOME EXTINCT by Cuppy; VITAMINS AND MINERALS FOR EVERYONE by Pattee; DIABETES MELLITUS by Wirtschafter; WAGES AND PRICES by Summers; HOME VEGETABLE GARDENING by Nissley; DUPONT, ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY YEARS by Dutton; THIRTEEN BY CORWIN by Corwin; UNKNOWN COUNTRY by Hutchison; PIONEERS OF PLENTY (Revised edition) by Borth.

TAMARA by Irina Skariatina is a novel of Imperial Russia. Tamara's blood inheritance was Imperial Russian and Royal Gypsy—her life was a tempestuous one lived amid the luxury and extravagance of glittering court life—through the most colorful years of St. Petersburg society, from the nineties to the downfall of the Romanoffs in 1918. The indomitable Russian spirit, made possible by the many contributing racial strains, is vividly reflected in the people the author creates from memory—types and characters she knew personally in the Old Russia of her youth.

FOOL OF TIME—by Beatrice Kean Seymour is the story of Carin Surrey who returns to England after eight years in America. She has left an eager suitor behind her, and her reasons for making the trip are obscure—to the family of her sister whom she is visiting and even to herself. Eventually, Carin and her sister realize why Carin has returned, and Carin, at last, is happy to know that she can go back to America with a whole heart.

FAITH THE ROOT by Barbara Frances Fleury is the story of Father Germain, familiarly called Father "Jerry," a lovable, simple priest in a little Michigan waterfront parish, who is deeply concerned about all and sundry, Catholics and Protestants alike. And they, in turn, all go to him for sanity and courage.

Other fiction: AUNT JESSIE by Holt; BORDER LINE by Gregory; MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S MURDER by Torrey.

WPB PREPARES FOR POSSIBLE RATIONING OF ELECTRIC POWER

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The war production board today prepared for possible rationing of electric power by assuming authority over power supplies of war plants and essential civilian activities.

In an agreement announced by the White House and approved by President Roosevelt, the WPB split the authority for handling power supply with the federal power commission, uniting the "efforts of the two agencies in meeting and handling wartime problems."

The WPB will have the responsibility of "planning, development and administration of power supply allocation programs for those regions where the available supply proves insufficient to meet all requirements"—a clear go-ahead for rationing plans which might be necessary late this year.

Indications of a power dole came last year when droughts cut the water supply in the southeastern states and in New England, seriously lowering power output of hydroelectric plants.

The FPC will retain authority over long-range power problems, certain peacetime activities and the protection of power supply against hostile acts. The White House announcement said the joint agreement "clearly defines the respective responsibilities of the two agencies for the purpose of securing maximum efficiency and the avoidance of duplication in the administration of the wartime power program." Staff members of the FPC will be made available to the war board for the duration.

COURT NEWS IN ASHLAND COUNTY

ASHLAND—Three suits for divorce were filed in Ashland common pleas court yesterday. Mildred Robert Wise, a minor, has brought suit by Mary Harp, against Guy E. Wise, a minor, on grounds of gross neglect. The plaintiff asks custody of a minor child and alimony.

Paul E. Ammons has filed suit for divorce against Ruby M. Ammons of Mansfield on grounds of gross neglect.

Gross neglect is also claimed in the divorce petition of Marie Aldrich against Burdette Aldrich.

OCTOGENARIAN IRKED BY NAVY

82-Year-Old Clevelander Wanted to Serve on Submarine.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—Gustav C. Van Duzen has lost all respect for naval regulations.

Eighty-two years old, white-haired and hollow-cheeked Van Duzen stomped into the navy recruiting office shortly after the war began and said he would like to serve on a submarine.

Chief Petty Officer F. L. Pearson explained that his age was 32 years past the navy's limit.

"Doggone it, you think just because a man gets old he isn't good for anything," said Van Duzen. "If you don't sign me up I'm going over to Canada and join up there."

Van Duzen had a reason for his preference for submarine duty. He explained to the recruiting officer that his experience in building the Cleveland waterworks intake tunnels at the turn of the century would be invaluable.

"I can teach 'em how to keep from getting the 'bends' when they dive," he said. "There's no excuse for a man getting the 'bends' if he knows how to avoid them." Van Duzen refused to reveal his preventive method.

When Van Duzen retired from city employ in 1932 a statement by the city engineer said: "Van Duzen has been one of the most dependable and useful men in my department. He seems to like to work under terrific air pressure—seems to eat it up.

Van Duzen was the hero of rescue work in the disaster here in 1916 when 10 men trapped below the surface of Lake Erie were saved. He was superintendent of the project. Later New York borrowed him to build the principal water main under the East river.

Lupino Was Stage Star In 1642, Old Poster Discloses

HOLLYWOOD —(INS)— Ida Lupino, only active member of the "Royal Family of Greasepaint," which has a stage record of 300 years, today was displaying a faded and tattered poster advertising the talents of the first Lupino to play before an English audience.

Claiming the priceless advertisement was almost certain proof that her ancestors introduced Punch and Judy to English audiences, Miss Lupino showed the poster to friends on the set of her new picture, "The Hard Way."

Georgius Luppino — they spelled it with two "p's" in 1642 —appeared at the Black Raven Inn in West Smithfield. He was billed as a "motion master" and advertised that he would present:

"Bel and the Dragon newly arrived from Italy, besides several jigs, sarabands, and country dances to the admiration of all spectators together with the merry conceits of Squire Punch and Sir John Soendell, with entertainments of singing and dancing and several naked swords performed by a child of eight."

Several museums have made bids for the poster, the actress said.

The recruiting officer said he regretted the navy couldn't find a use for his special knowledge of under-water pressure and the "bends" — but regulations were regulations.

"I want action," snapped Van Duzen, "and I mean what I said about joining the Canadians."

General, Scribe Die In Crash

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

So You Want to Be a Sports Editor? is the name of Dan Parker's article in this week's Satevepost, and the plug for reader's attention goes like this:

"If you like pugs, lugs, touts, bores, pass moochers and gastric ulcers, this is the job for you."

Sounds very much like that song of last winter. Remember?

"I like potato chips, moonshine and joiks and drips, How about you?"

Maybe it didn't go that way, but the two lines are strangely similar. Don't you think so?

* * *

Dan complains at length about the long hours of toil which the sports scrivening typewriter tapper puts in; about the many persons, most of them utter strangers, who are continually imposing on his time and good nature for favors they wouldn't ask their best friends; about the pass moochers, both the off-hand and constant variety; and about the noble athletes, who all too often would like to plant a punch on the proboscis of an offending scribe, and sometimes do.

* * *

But he winds up on a phrase that is as old as the sports writing racket, and to which I have often agreed: "It beats working for a living."

* * *

My esteemed editor, Don Lindsay, has been heard recalling on more than one occasion his experiences as a sports editor in Lorain, and the fact that he should recall such a condition of servitude so brazenly is something which puzzles me very much.

I have always been led to believe that once a person has passed through this phase of life, it is a skeleton which he hides in the darkest closet, and which he never, never, never drags out into the glaring light of day.

There have been times when I have noted the unmistakable looks of complete sympathy with which his present friends and acquaintances have received this revelation of his former means of livelihood.

And for my part, I have been informed more than once that a sports writer is the lowest form of human life. In fact this is a castigation which has been heaped upon me quite frequently, and usually the information is imparted to the accompaniment of a truculent forefinger beating it out on my none too robust chest.

There have even been times when it would not have taken much persuasion to make me believe that this conclusion is correct. So when I read recently in Carl Sandburg's "THE PEOPLE—YES!" the class in which he placed sports writers, I was not much surprised.

For the benefit of Mr. Parker and Mr. Lindsay, here is the Sandburgian sandbag

The people? Harness bulls and narcotic dicks, multigraph girls and soda-jerkers, hat girls, bat boys, sports writers, ghost writers, popcorn and peanut squads, flatfeet, scavengers, mugs saying "Aw go button your nose," squirts hollering "Aw go kiss yourself outa dis game intu anuddah," deadheads, hops, cappers, come-ons, tin horns, small timers, the night club outfits helping the soup-and-fish who have to do something between midnight and bedtime.

* * *

(Mr. Sandburg does find much more charming classes among the people, in case you care to read his book to discover your own stratum of society.)

End Manufacture Of Golf Balls

LONDON —(ANS)— No new golf balls are to be made in Britain.

The news is less unhappy for British golf-fans than it otherwise might have been. There are very few golf links left in Britain today. Many of them have been taken over by the RAF for aerodromes; many others for "Dig For Victory" private vegetable gardens; and the rest are deprived of the care they need by extensive call-ups of all available manpower.

Players are not to be allowed more than two golf balls per purchase. It is not expected however, that there will be any immediate shortage of remoulds.

Camilli Raises Ruckus

But Now He Does It With His Big Stick.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

THERE was quite a ruckus about Dolph Camilli during the winter, most fans will remember. By accident or design the Brooklyn Dodgers obtained waivers on the stocky slugger who led the National league in 1941 in home runs and runs batted in and was voted the most valuable player.

Perhaps fearing a holdout struggle and feeling that Camilli had reached his peak, President Larry MacPhail of the Dodgers discussed deals for him with the New York Yankees and both Boston clubs. A trade might have been made, too, if the New York Giants hadn't bought Johnny Mize from the St. Louis Cardinals before MacPhail made up his mind.

Now there is another rumpus going on around Camilli—only this time the veteran first baseman is causing it himself, with his big war club.

After being ill for five days and out of uniform, Camilli returned to the lineup this week in Brooklyn's important series with the Reds and hit four home runs in three games to help the Dodgers sweep the slate and run their spring surge to 14 victories in 17 games.

Yesterday the Dodgers were trailing 8-6 at the end of five innings. In the sixth Camilli hit his fifth homer of the season. In the eighth he singled the tying run across and in the ninth again homered, this time with two on, to win the game.

The Dodgers also moved to bolster their pitching yesterday by buying Schoolboy Rowe from Detroit for a price estimated at $15,000. The big fellow had started only one game for the Tigers this year and won it.

Cleveland continued to burn up the American league by crushing the Philadelphia Athletics again 6-1 to extend its winning streak to 11 games. This, incidentally, equalled a streak the Tribe achieved last year from April 25 to May 5, inclusive.

The New York Yankees regained second place by pouncing on the St. Louis Browns 3-0 behind the four-hit hurling of big Ernie Bonham, who racked up his second shutout and third straight triumph of the young season. Joe Gordon was out of the champs' lineup for the first time since April 25, 1939, ending a strmg of 471 American league games, because of a pulled muscle in his back.

Early Wynn pitched the Washington Senators to a 1-0 decision over the Chicago White Sox in a breathless mound duel with old Ted Lyons. The latter allowed only four hits to Wynn's five, but one of the Nationals' bingles was a triple by Stan Spence in the first inning and he came home on an infield out. It was Chicago's seventh straight loss.

The Boston Red Sox raided the Detroit Tigers 8-3 with Dick Newsome pitching six-hit ball and Ted Williams shaking his slump for a homer.

Howie Pollet, southpaw sensation of the National league last August, captured his first 1942 victory with a four-hit effort that brought the St. Louis Cardinals a 7-3 verdict over the New York Giants. Pollet himself drove in three runs.

The Phils backed up Frank Hoerst's nine-hit pitching with four home runs by Dan Litwhiler, Ron Northey, Nick Etten and Benny Warren to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-3.

The Boston Braves completed a sweep of their series with the Chicago Cubs by winning 3-2 on Jim Tobin's five-hit hurling. Buddy Gremp and Ernie Lombardi hit homers for Boston and Don Dallessandro hit one in the ninth inning to save the Bruins from a shutout.

CARBETTA BOOKED FOR TOLEDO BOUT

Paul Carbetta, Mansfield Golden Gloves champion of a year ago, returned this morning from Pittsburgh after several days of working out with Carmen Notch and Fritzie Zivic.

He reported he is booked for a fight next Friday night on the Bob Montgomery-Notch card at Toledo, and tentatively scheduled for a bout in Detroit May 11 or 18.

City League Revises Marks

Readjusts Averages at End of Each Round.

City-A league keglers, at their banquet last night at the Eagles, decided to readjust averages at the end of each round of play next winter, while retaining the present handicap limits.

* * *

The readjustment was voted through to prevent high handicap teams from running away with the league title after improving to the calibre of the rest of the league.

* * *

The new rule was aimed not only at the Schlitz Beers who won the championship this season, but also at new teams who may join the league with high handicaps The league again set 12 teams as their goal for next season.

Jim Orr was elected president for next season, Sherm Wentz, vice president, and Orlie Grable secretary-treasurer.

Farrell Hipp led the league averages with the high mark of 201 in 66 games.

All's Right In Derbytown

Butcher, Banker and Neighbors Gather Round.

By ORLO ROBERTSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—Derbytown began to look more like itself today as the butcher, the banker and the candlestick maker streamed into this horse-minded Ohio river city for the 68th running of the Kentucky Derby.

Although there was a decided increase in the tempo of arriving trains, buses, airplanes and automobiles, there were indications thta the crowd for tomorrow's $75,000 classic at Churchill Downs probably would not come up to those of pre-war Derbies. In lieu of an official announcement attendance has been estimated from 60,000 to 100,000 in recent years.

But a few thousand persons either way won't make much difference when the band strikes up "My Old Kentucky Home" and the pick of the nation's three-year-olds starts the parade to the barrier at the head of the stretch at 5:30 p. m. (Central War Time.)

* * *

Additional seats again have been installed but no matter what is done in that respect there never is enough room for all who want to see the event that Col. Matt Winn built up from just another horse race into the country's greatest turf spectacle.

Derby prices went into effect throughout most of the city today but that made no difference to the outlanders. Their pockets were bulging with folding money auguring well for shattering the parimutuel record of $2,096,613 established in 1926.

With a field of 17 expected to be named through the entry box today, visitors and natives alike had one common question—"Who's your Derby choice?"

For the most part the answers either were Mrs. Payne Whitney's power-house entry of Devil Diver and Shut Out, Ben Whitaker's well-conditioned Requested or the Texas combination of Valdina Orphan and Hollywood from Emerson Woodward's Valdina Farm.

Here and there, mostly from his home sector, good word was spoken for Al Sabath's Chicago-owned Alsab, the 1941 juvenile champ that has yet to win a race this year.

* * *

Sweep Swinger, a skinny, lanky colt from T. D. Buhl's Detroit barn, was liked by others, as were Pinkie Grimes — with Regards, winner of seven straight races, and Warren Wright's Sun Again.

All the others were lightly regarded.

40 Midget Cars Race Here Sunday

With an entry list so large that it has even surprised the promoter, and with interest in the combined auto races and motor thrill stunts at high pitch, B. Ward Beam said today that by post time 40 cars would attempt to qualify in what might be the last automobile show that Mansfield will see until after the war.

Beam said the large number of entries will necessitate the starting of qualifying trials at noon Sunday. He has arranged for 16 ticket sellers in anticipation of a big crowd.

Dolls Worry Old Jockeys

Three Have Leg Up on Horses at Beulah.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Three veteran jockeys leaned against the rail at Beulah Park shortly after dawn today, watching the runners go through their morning "works" in preparation for Saturday's opening of Ohio's inaugural 25-day race meeting.

Two trim thoroughbreds, with two equally trim riders astride, thundered down the stretch. Karl Horvath, who had a leg up in several Kentucky derbies, turned to Jockeys Charlie Hanauer and Jimmy Wray, saying:

"First they get the right to vote. Then they start smoking cigarettes. Then they begin wearing trousers—and now it looks like they're trying to cut into the jockey trade."

The exercise "boys" who had just thundered by were girls!

Feminine riders aren't new—Agua Caliente and other tracks having held novelty races for the women jockeys—but they're an innovation at the Grove City track.

Bob Dienst, president of the Beulah Park Jockey club, declared so many girls and women were exercising horses at the mile oval that he was contemplating a "powder puff handicap" for them, while W. B. (Bill) Daly, veteran starter, said.

"I've never seen so many women riders around a track as we have here. Most of them can ride well enough to handle runners in a race, and they're not bad lookers, either, believe me!"

The war, taking exercise boys into the armed forces and defense industry, has cut heavily into ranks of the boys who put the runners through the workouts, forcing owners and trainers to call on the weaker sex to help get the mounts ready for the races.

The feminine riders said they had no plans to enter the list of race riders, and members of the state racing commission said they never had an application from a woman for a jockey's license, but there is nothing in the Ohio law to prevent the girls from riding in the races, should they obtain a permit.

UNION HILL ACE HURLS NO-HITTER

Union high school's young "Bobby Feller" is still mowing 'em down in Richland county baseball. Harold Mattox, right-handed fireballer, who let Ontario down fast fall with one hit while fanning 17, hurled a no-hit game against the same team yesterday, Union winning 12-1.

Mattox fanned 13, and the lone Ontario run came in the fourth on a walk, a 2-base error, and a wild throw by one of his teammates.

Ev Jocha to Head League

Named President of Women's-Thursday Loop.

Ev Jocha was elected president of the women's Thursday night bowling league at their banquet last night at Mifflin Inn, succeeding Pauline Shively who was presented with a golf club membership for her service during the past season.

Buster Mills Keeps Tribe Streak Going

Drives In Three Runs With Timely Singles, Kennedy Cops 2nd

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Cleveland's red-hot Redskins came to the capital today with alternate line-ups which have proved so effective against both left and right-handed pitchers that the Tribe now holds first place by two full games over the New York Yankees.

Herman Besse of Philadelphia limited the Indians to eight hits yesterday, but the batting order switch which substituted Buster Mills for Roy Weatherly turned what might have been a close game into a 6 to 1 triumph.

Mills, a right-handed hitter, drove in three runs with a pair of timely singles. Weatherly, a lefty slugger, nicked Philadelphia hurlers for a homer, triple and double on Wednesday.

At the opening of the season Manager Lou Boudreau announced he intended to shake up his batting order when the Tribe faced a lefthander because too many Redskins bat from the first-base side of the plate.

After winning a majority of their 11-game victory string with a predominantly southpaw "murderers' row," the boy manager stuck to his original plans, revised his victory combination, and tucked away another triumph.

It was the second win without a loss for veteran Vernon Kennedy, who allowed nine hits, all of them singles.

* * *

Cleveland opened the scoring after one was out in the first by bunching three walks ahead of Mills' single, which drove in two runs.

The Tribe tallied another brace of runs in the fifth when Oris Hockett opened with a triple. Kenny Keltner flied out, but Hockett scored when Bill Knickerbocker booted Jeff Heath's grounder. Heath went on to second on the error, and crossed the plate when Mills singled.

* * *

Mills drew a pass in the seventh and went to third on Les Fleming's double. Ray Mack walked to fill the bags, and Mills tallied on Gene Desautel's long fly.

* * *

The A's pushed over a marker in the eighth on three successive singles, but the Redskins regained their five run advantage in the ninth.

Pirates Pay For Barrett

Cut Loose With Twenty Grand for Mansfielder.

PITTSBURGH— (AP) —Rookie Johnny Barrett, the "Flying Irishman" with the Boston accent whose speed caught the eye of Frankie Frisch, and who played his first professional ball for Mansfield, O., is a full-fledged member of the Pittsburgh Pirates at a cost of more than $20,000.

Attracted by Barrett's propensity for hitting triples as well as his fleet legs, the Pirates bid against stiff competition to get him on option from Hollywood of the Pacific Coast league last September. The agreement was that if Johnny were taken on permanently May 1, Hollywood would receive additional cash and a player.

The Bucs announced the southpaw outfielder would stay "for keeps." The club hasn't decided what player to offer Hollywood, but if none is accepted by the Pacific coasters, a third bundle of cash will be paid instead

"He has speed, a good arm and fine prospects," Manager Frisch said of the 24-year-old native of Lowell, Mass

Crashing a stock automobile into solid brick wall at sixty miles an hour — at Mansfield Fairground this coming Sunday.

Yes, that's just one of the twelve Auto Thrill show features which will appear at the Mansfield Fairgrounds this coming Sunday afternoon at 2:45 p. m. in connection with the professional Midget Auto Races. Willard Lott will attempt to jump an automobile over a trans-continental Bus-Buffy, Le Trobe will do the brick wall crash staying in the car to the finish. Leon Hickey will drive a car up a ramp, jump it seventy feet into another car, this thriller is known as a dive bomber crash. There will be twelve thrillers and 8 Midget Auto Races with some of the best drivers in the country as entrants. The General Admission price is 55 cents, children 30 cents.—Adv.

THEATERS

Hardy Romance.

Andy Hardy finds a new romance in "The Courtship of Andy Hardy," opening Saturday at the Ohio. Donna Reed, a newcomer to the Hardy series, furnishes the attraction after first appearing as a wallflower that Andy tries to "glamorize" to please his father. Lewis Stone appears in his customary role of Judge Hardy while Fay Holden plays Andy's mother. Others in the cast are Sara Haden, Cecilia Parker and Ann Rutherford.

Broadway Comedy.

"The Lady Is Willing," opening Saturday at the Madison, presents Marlene Dietrich in the comedy role of a Broadway actress with a screwball complex. She is surprised to find the law isn't on her side when she kidnaps an abandoned baby just for a lark but she beats the police to the altar to justify her case. Fred MacMurray plays opposite the star as a young medico who falls victim to her charms and the cast also includes Aline MacMahon. "Two Yanks In Trinidad," with Pat O'Brien and Brian Donlevy is the co-feature.

Bugville Drama.

Life 45 minutes from Broadway among a community of insects whose existence is constantly endangered by the encroachments of the human race is interestingly depicted in "Mr. Bug Goes to Town," the full-length Technicolor cartoon feature opening today at the Ritz. The story has all the drama of real life with a honeybee heroine, grasshopper hero and beetle villain. Hoagy Carmichael supplied part of the musical score. Lynn Merrick and Al St. John are featured in "Jesse James, Jr.," the second feature.

Theatrical Story.

Life behind the Broadway scene is portrayed in the Loretta Young-Frederick March co-starring vehicle, "Bedtime Story," opening tomorrow at the Park. Miss Young appears as a popular actress and March as a successful playwright who would agree to his wife's wishes to retire if he didn't always have a new play for her in mind. Allyn Joslyn, Robert Benchly and Helen Westley are other players "Girl From Alaska," with Ray Middleton and Jean Parker is the second attraction.

Dramatic Film.

Edward G Robinson's dramatic thriller, "Unholy Partners," opens tomorrow at the Majestic. Loraine Day is in the cast. "Bullets For Bayonets," with Tex Ritter is the co-feature.

2—Card of Thanks

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A 'Card of Thanks' can now be arranged by telephone. Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

OLD DIVIDEND CONTINUED BY STEEL COMPANY

NEW YORK — Prices turned slightly irregular in today's stock market transactions.

Up fractionally were Bethlehem Steel, Consolidated Edison and American Telephone. Minus marks were posted for U. S. Steel, General Motors, General Electric, Sperry and Crucible Steel.

Boardrooms derived some cheer from the action of Bethlehem directors after yesterday's close in voting a dividend of $1.50 a share on the Common, the same as paid previously, despite a drop in first quarter net, while the company announced sales for the initial months established a record, net profits were reduced to $1.51 a share compared with $2.96 in the December quarter and $2.95 in the first three months of 1941.

Attention was given the Dun & Bradstreet survey which found that the government's price-freezing order did not have as much effect on retail spending this week as had been expected but brought a decided lull in advance wholesale demand.

Nazi U-Boat Men In Caribbean May Be 'Old Friends'

ARUBA, N.W.I. —(INS)— Shipping men here believe they have old acquaintances just outside the reef and below the surface of the sea, aboard the Nazi submarines which have been stalking this island for a fortnight to attack sripping and shell the refineries.

Before the war numerous German tankers called here, frequently and were fully acquainted with local waters and reefs.

The ease with which the Nazis have been able to come inshore during the darkness has given rise to the belief sailors on those Nazi tankers are now aboard the attacking submarines.

"Even though they are not exactly friends," said a salty survivor of a torpedo attack, "I'd be happy to have them come ashore."

SEVEN ENTERED IN CONTEST FOR OHIO GOVERNOR

McSweeney Entry Reported as Rounding Out List of Major Candidates.

By CARL TURNER
(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — The entry of former Congressman John McSweeney, of Wooster, into the Democratic gubernatorial contest this week was believed to have rounded out the list of candidates for governor in the August 11 primaries.

Barring withdrawals, Gov. John W. Bricker and three opponents will seek the Republican gubernatorial nomination, while five Democrats seek to carry their party's standard in the November 3 general election.

Other aspirants have until June 11, the filing deadline, to get into the race, but leaders of both political parties in the capital foresee no further entries.

Republican organization men say that Governor Bricker will be re-nominated for a third term in a walk as none of his three opponents within the party has established a record as a vote getter. They are Herbert Hoover, Akron; Edward Lansing, Cleveland, and Louis Berkowitz, Cincinnati.

The Democratic gubernatorial primary was expected to furnish the fireworks with three candidates well known to the public bidding for the nomination. They are McSweeney, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, and former State Treasurer Clarance Knisley, now a member of the state industrial commission.

In addition to the so-called "big three," Frank Dye, a Columbus lawyer who finished last in a field of seven in the Democratic gubernatorial primary two years ago, and Charles Hubbell, Cleveland lawyer who unsuccessfully has sought many state offices, have declared they are in the race.

The capital hears that Ray Miller, Cuyahoga county Democratic chairman who has kept observers guessing whether he will be a candidate for Governor, will not make the race, and that his organization may throw its support to McSweeney.

Support of the national administration's war program will be the rallying cry of each Democratic aspirant in the primary.

Besides trying to score against their political foes, the candidates this year will have the difficult task of arousing public interest in politics at a time when a great portion of the voters are more concerned with the draft and the rationing of essentials.

The latter handicap will apply equally to all candidates, making it apparent that the one with the smoothest working organization for getting out the vote on August 11, will have a decided advantage.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Board Meets—The May dinner meeting of the Y. M. C. A. board of directors will be held at 5:30 p. m. Monday, it was announced today by Ray Calene, president. Plans for the summer program will be discussed.

Reports Theft—Jasper Davis, rear 191 North Diamond street, reported to police yesterday that $40 had been stolen from his room late Wednesday or early Thursday. Davis furnished police with a description of a suspect.

To Attend Meeting—Adjt. Paul Hoffman of the Salvation Army and Mrs. Hoffman will attend an all-day meeting in Cleveland next Thursday to welcome Commissioner and Mrs. Ernest I. Pugmire to the Cleveland Salvation Army district.

Mansfielder Arrested — John Owens, Grace street, was arrested last night by Mansfield police on an assault and battery warrant signed by Oleta Owens. Owens came to police headquarters voluntarily when he heard a warrant had been issued for his arrest and was released on bond.

Check On Report—Mansfield police reported today that an empty beer keg had been found inside the transformer enclosure of the Ohio Public Service company last night but that there was no suspicion of attempted sabotage. Police said that "playboys" had tossed the keg over a wire fence surrounding the transformers but that no damage was caused. The case was referred to Mansfield police by Westinghouse police officials.

ANSWER APPEAL

City's Industries To Sign Up Blood Donors.

Industry is responding to the appeal of the Richland county Red Cross blood donor committee and plans are being made to station registrars in various factories.

The Mansfield Tire and Rubber company has notified the Red Cross executive office to station a registrar at the plant Wednesday, May 6, between 11 a. m. and 6 p. m. to obtain the names of potential blood donors and to give infromation concerning the visit of the Cleveland mobile blood donor unit to Mansfield, May 28, 29, and 30.

Other factories including Westinghouse have also inquired into the program but definite dates have not been set.

A total of 258 persons, half the number required by the Cleveland unit, have registered so far and the committee expects the balance to register by May 15. A meeting of the committee has been called by John H. Finefrock, chairman, for 4 p. m. today to further plans for the service.
